FRENCH TENNIS STAR SPEEDS TO BOSTON

Suzanne Lenglen, French professional tennis star arriving in Boston today, sent a message to all citizens throught the Boston Evening American, telling of the pleasure it gives her to visit here in a centre of "culture known throughout the world for its tremendous educational institutions."

TENNIS STAR CHEERED AS SHE STEPS SMILING FROM CAR AT BACK BAY

Voila!

Susanne the Great is here.

Animated by a zest for baked beans and culture, but minus her famous temperament, Mlle. Lenglen, French tennis star, arrived in Boston today.

Accompanied by C. C. Pyle, Columbus of impresarios, and other professionals in his traveling tennis aggregation, Suzanne reached here from New York, filled with eagerness to see Boston.

COL. JOHNSON LEADS IN LEGION BALLOT

Philadelphia, Oct. 15 (A.P.)—Col. J. Monroe Johnson, Marion, S. C.; Howard P. Savage, Chicago; Thomas A. Lee, Topeka, Kas., and Jay Williams of Aberdeen, S. D., were nominated today for national commander of the American Legion. There was no election at the end of the first five ballots. The vote on the fifth ballot was: Johnson 496, Savage 486, Lee 27, Williams 18.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET IS SOFT

New York stock market was soft today most of the session. Reactionary forces were in control of numerous issues. The selling waves slackened around the closing hour. Late trading saw these declines from the day's highs: Atchison 144, off 3 3-8; du Pont 324 1-4, off 8; Can 47 5-8, off 1 7-8; Ind Alcohol 69, off 2 7-8;

PLANES TRAIL ROBBERS, BATTLE IS EXPECTED

Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 15 (I.N.S.).—Two hundred armed men, ready to shoot to kill, marched into the Watchung Mountains, near here, early today, closing in on the eight machine gun desperados, who killed one man and wounded three others in a $200,000 mail truck robbery yesterday at Elizabeth, N. J.

Airplanes, equipped with tear bombs and hand grenades and manned by State troopers, were ordered to fly over the mountains in an effort to locate the killers.

The fugitives were believed to be hiding in the mountains, although Major Mark O. Kimberling, directing the man hunt, received word from Morristown at midnight that

'I RAN AWAY TO DODGE LOVE CULT'—PEACHES

By "PEACHES" BROWNING

New York, Oct. 15.—By leaving Mr. Browning I saved myself from being forced into the peculiar practices of a strange love cult. Thank Heaven, I escaped that possibility.

It is hideous to me to think that I might have been burned into the vilest perdition far from the pure cult of real love. Love is sacred to me.

I laughed when a newspaper a few days after our wedding printed a report that we were about to join the cult of Oom the Omnipotent. I don't know what sort of a cult Oom operates but I thought it was awfully funny that we should be considered as candidates.

Since that time, however, I have learned some things about Mr. Browning that I didn't know then and I am aware that he is not uninterested in some of the mysteries surrounding various kinds of cults.

Mr. Browning met this love cult priestess in his office. He was partially struck by the fact that she was a woman who had managed to preserve her youth wonderfully.

POLICE SEIZE BOOZE PILED UP ON BEACH

Plymouth, Oct. 15.—White Horse Cellar, Old Smuggler and Ambassador Scotch whiskey, valued at $7,500, was seized by the police today when it was landed on the beach twelve miles south of the town.

The seizure was made by Acting Chief Joseph Schilling, with Officers John Gault, John Barrett and Robert Fogarty. The rum runners made their escape.

The police had been on watch at the landing for three nights when a launch pulled in early today and anchored off shore. The boxes of Scotch were loaded into dories which were pulled ashore, but owing to the low tide the rum runners were forced to tote their cargo up the beach.

LOVE TRIUMPHANT OVER PARENTS' OBJECTIONS

WILL RE-MARRY

Miss Virginia Savoie of Boston and W. B. Gordon of St. Petersburg are to have a wedding today performed by a clergyman. She has been awarded $50,000 for use of her chateau in France during the war.

LOVE WINS; THEY WED

A second marriage today, supplanting a ceremony before a justice of the peace two years ago, was to culminate the romance of William B. Gordon of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Miss Virginia Savoie of Boston, who has been awarded $50,000 by the French government for use of her chateau during the war.

Winning the consent of parents who objected to their first union, the couple planned to tie the knot once more before a clergyman, Gordon coming here to join his absent "bride" for the wedding.

INDICT 7 IN COW CASE

Springfield, Oct. 15.—Following a Hoku investigation 20 secret indictments were returned today calling for the arrest of seven men in connection with cattle frauds in western Massachusetts.

Bench warrants were issued by Judge Edward T. Broadhurst and State officers were sent to arrest those named. Larceny is included in the charges.

Six recommendations for changes in State laws to prevent recurrence of "cattle fraud," dealing with the condemnation of tubercular cattle and the payment of damages to owners by the State, were made by the Grand Jury.

It was the belief of officials the statutes were "an invitation to unscrupulous dealers to defraud the State and Federal governments in obtaining remuneration for cattle slaughtered under the tuberculosis law."

The Grand Jury recommendations were forwarded to Assistant Attorney General James H. Devlin by District Attorney C. H. Wright.

SHOWS BIG INCREASE IN ALCOHOL PRODUCTION

Washington, Oct. 15 (A.P.).—A big increase in production of alcohol in the United States is evidenced in Commerce Department reports today, estimating molasses imports during 1925 at 299,000,000 gallons, an increase of 48 per cent. over 1924 and 600 per cent. over 1913.

This commodity is used largely in making industrial alcohol. Most of the imported molasses comes from Cuba. There also was a heavy production of molasses in the United States.

TRANSCONTINENTAL AIR MAIL TO BE RUN BY PRIVATE ENTERPRISE

Washington, Oct. 15 (A.P.).—The government intends to relinquish operation of the transcontinental air mail service and within 30 days invitations will be issue by the Postmaster-General calling for bids for its operation by private enterprise.

With the passage by the last Congress of legislation placing the Department of Commerce in charge of commercial aviation matters, Postmaster-General New said he felt the time has arrived when the Postoffice Department could step out.

The department has on hand about 35 airplanes, 15 hangars located at flying fields all over the country, and shop equipment worth several million dollars.

The Postmaster-General reiterated today that no company could successfully operate a commercial air service on a mail contract alone, but must also be prepared to transport passengers and express. This condition, he said, would be all the more applicable to the contractor who took over the line now being operated by the postoffice department.

Mr. New is laying plans for changes in air mail postage rates that will render them more uniform and provide a flat rate applicable throughout the country regardless of distance.

LOS ANGELES REACHES DETROIT IN 16 HOURS

Detroit, Oct. 15 (A.P.).—The navy's great airship the Los Angeles, arrived at the Ford airport at Dearborn, near here, at 2:24 a. m. today and was anchored safely to the mooring tower two and a half hours later.

The big Zeppelin completed the voyage from Lakehurst, N. J., to Dearborn, hopeful of the all fated Shenandoah, in slightly more than 16 hours. Weather conditions were generally good and the ship functioned well according to the crew.

Thousands waited all night for the arrival of the dirigible at the airport and cheered as the big gray hull drove into sight.

The trip, which marked the first inland voyage of the Los Angeles, was without serious mishap.

Speed was reduced to a minimum over the treacherous stretch where the Shenandoah was destroyed and Lieutenant - Commander Zachary Lansdowne and a number of the crew killed.

Several times during the journey over the Ohio the ship was pitched slightly off its course to avoid inclement winds, but it entered Michigan and left behind the dreaded district the Los Angeles put on speed until the Dearborn airport was reached.

The Los Angeles is scheduled to take part in the dedication of a municipal airport at Youngstown, O., tomorrow.

GORDON FACES CROWD IN COURT; RECEIVER DENIED

Judge Morton in the equity motion session of the Superior Court today refused to appoint a temporary receiver for the Eagle Investment Association, alleged to have been wrecked by Samuel J. Gordon, held in Charles street jail in lieu of $100,000 bail.

Judge Morton said Assistant District Attorney Timothy A. Callahan, who is handling the case, is acting practically as a receiver, and an appointment at this time would only serve to complicate matters further.

Gordon was in court, shackled to a court officer, and apparently unmindful of the baleful glares given him by the depositors of his company who crowded the room.

The crowd muttered when Assistant District Attorney Callahan informed the court that there was no doubt Gordon had lost at least $200,

No More Primary? Facing Destruction Wet, Dry, Part Wet Both Jumped

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Company.

VICE-PRESIDENT DAWES thinks the direct primary should be abolished.

In its place would come the old convention and candidates selected by political bosses.

On the whole, he direct primary is the better plan. Sometimes you cannot buy the voters. You can always buy the bosses, and they are cheaper than direct primary buying.

What does the public gain by enabling a rich man to buy his seat in the Senate more cheaply?

ANDREW FURUSETH, head of the Seamen's Union, a fine old sailor, says unions "face destruction" at the hands of the courts, and suggests: "It may be necessary for us to tell courts that enjoin us, we refuse to answer your questions, we refuse to recognize you," etc.

MR. FURUSETH is earnest and honest, and labor unions, compelling employers to pay decent wages, have in past times been powerful in increasing general prosperity.

But those unions really will "face destruction" on the day they decide to overrule the courts. That must be done only through the ballot box, not in the backroom of any labor union or corporation.

BAD MEN, 9-11, HALED BEFORE BIG JUDGE

Machias, Me., Oct. 15 (A.P.)—Trailed through a series of wanton acts described by police as running from burglary and the malicious destruction of cottage property to terrorizing the inhabitants with gunfire, Harley Grover, eleven, and Vernon Worcester, nine, both of Jonesport, were brought here today for hearing on charges resulting from the alleged acts.

According to the police, the boys made a tour of cottages along the shore near the village, entering where they could, and wrecking things generally within. With double-barrel shotguns found in one of the cottages, they proceeded to West Jonesport, where, under cover of darkness, they are said to have entered a lumber scow, the plant of the Underwood Canning Company and the sardine schooner Candage, in each causing damage in a reckless fashion.

At the store of Charles Huntley they stole two bikes, on which they pedalled out of the village, discharging their guns in regular bandit style, keeping up their firing until after the midnight hours.

Finding they were being pursued, the boys returned through the woods to their homes, where they were taken into custody by Sheriff's Deputy D. G. French, one of a posse which had been turned out at the call of terrorized citizens, who thought real bandits had taken possession of the town.

CROWD CHEERS SUZANNE AT BACK BAY

A crowd which had gathered at the Back Bay station cheered lustily as the French artiste of the racquet tripped down the steps of the Pullman.

Bundled in one of the five fur wraps which she had sent for to protect her from Boston's chill breezes, Mlle. Lenglen smiled her appreciation of the greeting, and chattered animatedly with Paul Feret, her fellow countryman and professional.

She wore a small hat that was the acme of Parisian "chic," but the voluminous wrap concealed her costume with the exception of nude-colored silk stockings and shoes.

STAY AT HOTEL LENOX

The party were bundled into waiting automobiles and hustled to the Hotel Lenox, where they will make their stay until after the games in the Arena tomorrow night.

Mlle. Lenglen displayed a keen interest in her first view of Boston, to which she has been looking forward for some time, according to reports.

Her dead white complexion afforded a startling contrast to her vivid red lips, and gave an appearance of fatigue which was belied by the tennis star's movements. She has expressed a desire to see all the points of interest in the city.

SUZANNE'S MESSAGE

Arriving with her for her professional debut at the Arena were the other "pro" tennis stars Mary K. Browne, Vincent Richards, Paul Feret, Harvey Snodgrass and Howard Kinsey. Suzanne's mother accompanied her.

Suzanne sent a message to Boston through the Boston Evening American and addressed "Dear Boston" telling of the pleasure she expected in visiting here as "a city of culture."

Suzanne told friends en route that she was interested, among other things in sampling Boston beans which she had heard so much about even in far away France.

WILL "SHOOT TO KILL."

All through the night hundreds of police and deputized citizens in every part of New Jersey were feverishly alert, guarding every road and lane but daybreak found the robbers still at large.

"Shoot on sight, and shoot to kill," was Major Kimberling's order.

He warned farmers to arm themselves and guard their houses. So thoroughly had the alarm been spread that it was not believed the robbers could obtain food without risking capture.

Major Kimberling said he would not be surprised if the desperate gang had headquarters in the Watchung hills and numbered twenty or thirty men. The heavily-armed troopers carrying riot guns and gas bombs in addition to their rifles and pistols, have formed a cordon around a thirty-mile area.

TO SHOOT AT SIGHT.

John (Rum) Rogers and James ("Killer") Cunliffe are believed by the police to have been the leaders of the robbers. Rogers has been a mysterious character since he escaped from the train while being taken to Sing Sing prison last Spring. Cunliffe has the reputation of being a drug addict and a dangerous gunman.

The police believe they are responsible for a series of Northern New Jersey holdups, including the attempt to rob the air mail at Hadley Field, when Frank Kearney and his son Robert, 18, were killed two weeks ago. In one of four other robberies a man was killed.

The whole State is aroused at the Elizabeth slaying and robbery and is resolved that the robbers will be taken, if not give them dead.

Mr. Callahan has asked all depositors to turn over to him their passbooks in order to facilitate the check-up and about 500 were sent in before noon today.

Fearing for his life, Gordon has refused the offer of friends to furnish bail, informing his attorney, I Jacobs, and the Boston Evening American that he preferred to remain in jail until his case is called October 22.

D. C. STEPHENSON
Former Indiana Ku Klux Klan chief serving time for murder, and accused of far reaching political corruption in that State.

CALL ACCUSER OF KLANSMAN

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 15 (A.P.)—The Grand jury investigating alleged corruption in Indiana politics today summoned for the second time Thomas H. Adams, publisher of the Vincennes Commercial. Charges by Adams that high office holders bargained corruptly for political support with D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, culminated in the Grand Jury probe.

William H. Remy, prosecutor, and Attorney-General Gilliom, Remy's special assistant in the investigation, expressed the hope that Mildred Meade, 23-year-old girl who is said to have been a confidante of Stephenson, could also be brought in to testify. She has been missing from her home here since last Friday.

Apparently having gained little information from Stephenson himself when the ex-Klan leader was brought from the State prison Wednesday, officials turned their attention today to persons who were close to him before he was convicted of murdering Madge Oberholtzer and sent to prison for life. Subpoenas were issued for several of Stephenson's friends.

Adams has alleged that Stephenson has concealed somewhere information that will substantiate every allegation of graft.

MANY BABIES ENTER CONTEST

Is Boston's most perfect baby a boy or girl?

Judging from the numerous photographs received in the Boston Evening American—Metropolitan Theatre prize baby contest the experts who will decide are going to have plenty of mental exercise before answering.

This contest is being conducted in connection with the great birth day of the theatre. All children born in Boston since Oct. 17, 1925, the date in which the "Met" was opened, are eligible.

The contest closes next Wednesday. All entries must be in the hands of the "Baby Editor" not later than noon of that day. Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, Boston's health commissioner, will direct the judging.

Here are the prizes:
First prize—$150 in gold.
Second prize—$75 colored and framed enlargement of baby's picture; donated by Gus White, photographer.
Third prize—$25 bank account for baby.
Fourth prize—One dozen art photographs donated by Gus White, photographer.

BOYS MAY GET GRASS SPACE

Hopes of boys to be allowed to play football on a soft, grassy space on the Boston Common, instead of on the hard playground, were raised when the new park commissioner, William P. Long, promised that the appeal of the boys would be considered by the park commission.

On his first day in office Park Commissioner Long promised Mrs. Ida Plaisted leader of the boys' groups in the West and North Ends, that he would take up the matter with the commission. The boys complain that they are cut and bruised on the hard playground on the Common and ask for a plot of grass to play on.

GENERAL NEWS SECTION

FULLER WELCOMES BRITISH PRELATE

With Bishop William Lawrence and a delegation of clergy and laymen as greeters, the Rt. Hon. and Rt. Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington Ingram, K. C., V. O., D. D., dean of the Chapels Royal, prelate of the Order of the British Empire and incumbent of the See of London for a quarter century, arrived in Boston today.

The Lord Bishop of London is here to talk to students of Greater Boston's many colleges and universities and to answer questions on ecclesiastics.

He will be in and about Boston possibly six weeks.

After a brief talk with newspapermen, during which he refused to comment on flappers or cigarette-smoking by women, and declared prohibition to be, with him, a "closed subject," he was escorted from Huntington avenue station to the State House, where he was received by Governor Fuller and other dignitaries.

Bishop Ingram inspected with keen interest, the ancient manuscript kept as a log by Governor Bradford during his trip to America on the Mayflower and his tenure of office.

This log was stolen during the Revolution by a British officer, who took it from the Old South Meeting House to London, where it remained until 1874, when a Boston delegation was presented the document by the then Bishop of London for return to the Hub.

Later, Bishop Ingram, at Phillips Brooks House, was guest at a luncheon of prominent clergymen and laymen. Then he was taken by Bishop Lawrence to the latter's house in Brush Hill road, Milton.

Tonight he will be guest of clergymen at an informal dinner in the Phillips Brooks House.

He will attend a tennis tournament tomorrow, probably at Harvard, and at night will dine with Bishop Coadjutor Slattery. At 8:45 a. m., Sunday, Bishop Ingram will be at Appleton Chapel, Harvard, and in the evening at St. Paul's Cathedral.

MAYOR ASKS STATE AID ON SUBWAY

Mayor Nichols will not accept the rebuff from the Boston Elevated trustees on his scheme to carry the subway under Governor square.

The fight will be waged harder and undoubtedly will be taken to the State Legislature.

The State owns the tunnel in Cambridge and rented it to the Elevated. With this in mind the mayor is expected to carry on his attempt to relieve traffic conditions in Governor square by getting the State to put the electric cars underground.

"Too impractical to be carried out," was the blunt way in which Samuel L. Powers, chairman of the Elevated trustees, waved aside the mayor's proposal.

His position was made known in a letter to Mayor Nichols, replying to a recent query concerning the trustees' failure to act under the act of the Legislature making the extension possible.

Tremendous burdens would be imposed on car riders through necessarily increased fares, Powers said, if the tunnel was built and the traffic congestion on the surface would not be reduced.

As it is the Elevated, he said, is now facing a situation, by reason of advanced costs of operating and higher wages, that will compel further fare increases unless improvement in earnings is shown very soon.

In conclusion he said if the surplus earnings of the Elevated do not increase in the years to come, an increase in subway rentals will cause a deficit that must be met by increased fares.

At the same time Mr. Powers was making his position clear, Representative Luke D. Mullen of Charlestown was moving to have the Charlestown elevated structure removed.

HALL CASE WAS HOODOO FOR PIG WOMAN

Somerville, N. J., Oct. 15 (A.P.)—Poisoned pigs and chickens, and financial reverses resulting in the sale of all but 19 acres of her 63-acre farm, are part of the lot visited on Mrs. Jane Gibson since she became the widely-heralded "pig woman" and star witness for the State in the Hall-Mills murder case, she complained to Inspector John Underwood today.

The picturesque farmer woman who was riding her mule near the Phillips farm when Rev. Edward W. Hall and his sweetheart, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, were slain Sept. 14, 1922, told the inspector 73 of her pigs and half of her chickens had been killed, and Dr. Loblein, a veterinarian, ascribed their end to poisoning.

Mrs. Gibson declared the banks had refused to lend her money, presumably because of her accusations against some of the four defendants now awaiting trial next month for murder.

As a result of the banks' attitude she has had to sell 44 acres from her farm, she asserted.

BIG SHAKEUP IN N. E. COAST GUARD

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 15 (A.P.).—Further changes announced today in the First Coast Guard District extending from Lubec, Me., to the Merrimack River, followed close on the heels of other transfers and reorganization and together formed the greatest shakeup in the district in years.

It was announced today four or five surfmen had been disrated and sent to the destroyer fleet by a deck court for infractions of regulations and that others would be put on trial. Seven boatswain's mates and a surfman were transferred.

The sweeping changes are laid at the door of Lieutenant Christopher J. Sullivan, commandant of the district, who came from Gloucester to take command about three months ago.

No specific reasons have been given for the shifts other than that they were for the good of the service. One of the recent changes was the creation of the Merrimack River district, composed of the river, Hampton, Salisbury and Plum Island stations.

FOOLHARDY FEAT COST LIFE OF D. P. DAVIS

S. S. Majestic, Oct. 15 (A.P.)—Friends of D. P. Davis, the Florida real estate dealer, who was drowned several days ago when he fell from the deck of the Majestic into the sea, say he was the accidental victim of his own rashness in his love for performing athletic feats.

They made this statement today at the official inquiry held by the captain of the Majestic.

It was declared that Davis was straddling a window of his suite in a "foolhardy" balancing feat and that he lost his balance and fell into the sea.

The friends and business associates of Mr. Davis declare that he had no financial troubles and said he was in the best of health.

BEGS FOR BETTER FLAVOR IN POSTAGE STAMP 'STICKEM'

Washington, Oct. 15 (A.P.)—Post-office Department officials scratched their heads today in wonder and amazement over the latest voluntary suggestion to boom their business.

It came in a letter from the "always-willing-to-help" manager of a trade magazine which expressed enthusiastic approval of everything about Uncle Sam's stamps except the "stickem" on the back.

"It's the same flavor we have had ever since the Civil War days," the letter complained, "It is bad tasting.

"I want you to put some flavoring extract in the paste; have some peppermint, sarsaparilla and other nice-tasting flavors. It will help sell stamps. People will feel a longing for a little flavor and they will go in and buy a stamp and write a letter to mother."

'DESPERATE THIEVES' ARE BOYS OF 11 AND 9

Jonesport, Me., Oct. 15.—After a two-day search by a posse of fifty angry men for two "desperate criminals," who had looted five Summer cottages, two shops and a schooner, the thieves were captured in homes. They proved to be Harley Grover, 11, and Vernon Worcester, 9.

void, charging gross violation of the constitution and unlawful discrimination against the voters of Ward 21.

Justice Braley heard Oppenheim's petition, ruled against him on a point of law, and reported the case to the full bench, which convenes October 18.

Attorney Allen then filed his motion, in which he claims that Oppenheim failed to file a report in the Supreme Court and more than a month has elapsed with no order yet entered for the printing of the record.

If his motion is sustained then Oppenheim's petition will be thrown out, while, on the other hand, a ruling against Allen may mean that the redistricting will be declared void in Suffolk County. Tuts would result in Suffolk County being left without any representative, as is Essex County.

Oppenheim bases his charges on the fact that Ward 21, with 10,618 population, was given only one Representative, while Ward 20, with 10,451, was given 2 and Ward 3, with 10,815, was also given two Representatives.

BROKER AND DIRECTOR OF Y. M. C. A. DIES AT 75

New York, Oct. 15 (A.P.)—Henry L. Langdon, seventy-five-year-old member of the New York Stock Exchange, died at his Brooklyn home today after a brief illness. Mr. Langdon was a member of the national board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. and had long been active in hospital and church work.

to take care of him. He finally went with his father, young Jesse admitted, but was put out because he insisted on seeing his mother against his father's wishes.

IN SHOW TOGETHER.

Once, he said he found his father pounding his mother.

On another occasion, he said, he heard his father ask Tyrrell to take Mrs. Sargent to the movies.

Tyrrell, who followed the son to the stand, said he became friendly with the Sargents when he went to live with them, and that he became especially friendly with the husband. Referring to testimony that he had been discovered with Mrs. Sargent in a picture show by her husband, he declared the meeting was purely accidental.

At one time, he testified, Sargent asked him, "Do you want my wife?"

TELLS OF THREAT.

When Sargent reached home after this episode, Tyrrell said, he dragged his wife inside, started to tear her clothes off and threatened to get an axe to chop off her head.

Henry S. Patterson, a former boarder at the Sargent home, testified that when Sargent and Tyrrell came to blows in a dispute involving Mrs. Sargent, he hid her in a closet.

He added: "I was afraid Sargent might beat her up."

A vote of censure prepared by the Communists and another motion calling for immediate dissolution of the Diet were ruled out of order.

PUGILIST KILLS WOMAN AND MAN IN STREET CAR

New Orleans, Oct. 15 (A.P.)—A discarded suitor early today entered a street car on Canal street, in the business section, and shot to death the woman and the man who had replaced him in her affections.

Mathew Semmary, a New Orleans prizefighter, known in ring parlance as "Battling Joe Nelson," escaped temporarily after the shooting, but was arrested a short time later.

BISHOP OF WALL STREET DEAD

Providence, Oct. 15 (A.P.)—Rev. Edwin A. Corbett, native of this city and widely known as the bishop of Wall Street and New York's religious "plainclothes man," died at the Homeopathic Hospital today after a short illness. He was in his eighty-ninth year.

Notice came to Rev. Mr. Corbett when he planned an "anti-set" parade in New York in 1921, in opposition to the parade planned by 5000 thirsty men who marched through the streets of that city to demonstrate their opposition to the Volstead act.

SEEK TO INDICT THREE MORE IN HALL SLAYING

Somerville, N. J., Oct. 15 (Universal)—The indictment of at least three persons as accessories after the fact in the Hall-Mills murders will be asked of a Somerset County grand jury convening today, Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson announced.

The name of Felix di Martini private detective employed by the Hall family soon after the slaying four years ago will be one of those presented it was said.

DiMartini is now under arrest in New York on a charge of being a fugitive from justice in New Jersey and has been waging a court fight to escape extradition. His attorney, John McKim Minton, Jr., intimates he may surrender to New Jersey authorities.

Henry Stevens, one of the four indicted for the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall, and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, issued a statement from jail here protesting his innocence. He accused the prosecution of subjecting innocent persons to unjustified annoyance and sorrow.

Sis, Procrastination, Steals His Time, He Loses Job

His sister robbed him of his only chance to get a job by taking his alarm clock, Thomas Flaherty of Dorchester avenue told Judge Churchell when arraigned as a stubborn child today. He was given a two months' suspended sentence and placed on probation when he offered the novel excuse. He said he had a job and set the alarm clock to awaken him.

His sister took the clock and he overslept, losing the first job he had in five months.

PENS PROGRESS OF STATE IN INDUSTRY

By BERT FORD

Spiking the fallacy that the State is slipping industrially or otherwise, the annual report of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts paints a picture of optimism and of achievement so graphic as to set every public spirited citizen on his toes.

Peter Sheridan doubt after reading the scholarly document prepared by Orra L. Stone, the general manager. In preparing a summary to be read at the eleventh annual meeting at the Copley-Plaza, October 20-21, Mr. Stone depicts the industrial development of Massachusetts during the first quarter of the Twentieth Century.

BANISHES GLOOM.

He pays just tribute to the old industries and to the hundreds of new ones that have sprung up here. He backs his arguments with concrete evidence and statistics. And he drives home the conviction that there is cause to rejoice rather than to complain. A gloom banisher.

"The unwarranted assumption by the undiscerning that the waning or death of specific industries necessarily portends a general or average decline of industrial activity," writes General Manager Stone, "utterly and completely ignores the effect new industries have upon the situation.

CHANGE NOT DECAY.

"It would be absurd to say that because New Bedford, which three-quarters of a century ago changed from whaling to manufacturing, and that Salem, which a hundred years ago was unrivalled as a shipping port, by any other municipality in the United States, and later became an industrial center, lost their respective prestige, and gained nothing by the metamorphosis.

"One might aver that because a century ago Massachusetts passed from an almost distinctively agricultural community to that of a manufacturing State, she had passed out of the picture. Quite the contrary, history shows that she easily became an industrial center of such importance and so easily assumed such an industrial leadership as not even the most confirmed optimist of that period could have foreseen.

"Between 1890 and 1922 the per capita wealth increment in New England rose from $1,111 to $3,186, or 187 per cent. During the same period the per capita gain made in all the other States of the Union rose from $1,036 to $2,318, or at the rate of 131 per cent.

"Between 1912 and 1922 New England's total gain in wealth was 105 per cent. During the same period of years the wealth of the rest of the country, excluding the six New England States, gained but 85 per cent.

HUB PROTESTS SLAUGHTER OF BUFFALO

Bostonians sent winging westward today an appeal to stop the proposed slaughter in the name of "sport" of 300 tame buffalo, one of the last remaining herds of the 50,000,000 shaggy animals that once roamed the American plains.

Far and wide has been advertised that "last buffalo hunt," and these animals, now released for the carnage on the 20-mile Antelope Island in Great Salt Lake, Utah, are the unwitting herd that millions of Americans saw flash across the silver screen in "The Covered Wagon."

Scheduled for November, this sportless killing will take place unless a storm of protest halts the rain of bullets from the guns of wealthy hunters. "Pawnee Bill" Lillie of Pawnee, Oklahoma, hero of countless numbers of American boys, who strangely enough was invited to attend the hunt, sounded the alarm that may stop the slaughter.

NOT REAL SPORT.

"It's an outrage and here's no real sportsman that will engage in such butchery," declared Francis H. Rowley of Boston, president of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

"It is disgraceful to America. It is like herding sheep together in a pen and then telling men to go in and shoot them."

Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, noted Boston woman, prominent in many fields, said: "It is cruel to exterminate the buffalo in this manner. With so few remaining it seems to me that they could be saved, the United States government might take them and lace them in a park or reservation, or some state could do it. I am very sorry that this hunt is planned."

Assistant U. S. Attorney George R. Farnum, president of the Melrose Humane Society, said: "I wish to add my voice in protest. To destroy 300 fin eamerican buffalo in that fashion is a disgraceful thing. It is nothing short of slaughter and I hope the publicity being given the matter will result in calling off the hunt. It is beyond me how any real sportsman can accept such an invitation. It is decidedly demoralizing to destroy these animals in his name or sport."

Horses will be provided the hunters who go to Antelope Islan dnext month, if present plans materialize.

STIRRING APPEAL.

The stirring appeal of "Pawnee Bill" summons Americans to act in protest, the famous plainsman and Wild West Show rider declaring:

"Now comes an invitation to me to attend what is called the 'Last Great Buffalo Hunt,' at which 300 of as fine specimens as I have ever seen are to be slaughtered by rich men who call themselves sportsmen and have the money to pay.

"How a modern city like Salt Lak City can sit idly by and allow such an outrage at her very doors is something I cannot understand. Will the multitudes of American sportsmen who match their skill against the cunning and warriors of wild game permit the butchering of tame buffalo with bullets of gold?

"I protest and ask every red-blooded sportsman to take hold and save the few remaining buffalo.

"The animals are owned by A. H. Leonard of Fort Pierre, S. D., who purchased them and then found it too troublesome to transport them to his ranch. He plans to save a few for breeding.

QUEEN MARIE TO DISEMBARK AT QUARANTINE

QUEEN EAGER TO TRY BOSTON BAKED BEANS

because she does not relish her formal menu.

At any rate Princess Ileana went to her stateroom last night, while her brother, Nicholas, joined in the dancing in the Leviathan's saloon.

Prince Nicholas danced to his heart's content, choosing American girls as his partners. One of them was Miss Jane Moore of New York.

Queen Marie's slight cold is still annoying her.

Commodore Hartley announced today that the Leviathan will dock at 7 a. m. Monday.

The queen notic tonight her real experiments with American food. She intends to live entirely on American foods.

For breakfast the Queen had griddle cakes and maple syrup and sausage. For lunch she enjoyed chicken a la Maryland, corn fritters, candied sweet potatoes, beaten biscuits with honey, fritters of banana, compote and fresh fruits.

If the experiment is successful Her Majesty later will try Boston baked beans and hot mince pie.

The beverage will be tea. Even if Queen Marie were not on a dry ship, she would prefer tea and lime juice and ice water to even the most expensive wines.

Aside beverages, her attitude towards prohibition is:

"I have never known poverty or want or touched those depths that might drive a man to seeking relief in drink. But I do think that if laws are made in a country against this or that—and that country the most democratic in the world—a law should be a law for every man.

"I cannot but deplore that the man who has lots of money should use it to indulge secretly in that which his poor brother is punished for. Where does democracy come in?

"As to young girls drinking and considering it smart and finally becoming so dependent on drink that their spirits sob when there is no alcohol about—that is truly terrible. But it is especially the thought of the rich man indulging in what his poor brother cannot have that upsets all my ideas of what each good citizen owes to the country he is helping to build up."

Queen Marie admires the ship's furnishings, because she is interested in interior decorations. She says she could earn her own living by being a decorator or by running a millinery shop if she lost the throne.

Queen Marie will be able to spend two weeks more than was thought in America. Last year Rumania changed from the Russian to the regular calendar and Christmas, which came in our January, was advanced fourteen days.

But this year the country will return to the Russian system so her Majesty will be able to prolong her trip by two weeks and still be able to return to Rumania for Christmas.

The four-year-old baby of Sidney Heller, a passenger, insists on seeing the queen. The child speaks German, as does the Queen. The baby does not understand how there can be a Queen without a King.

Sword for Queen Marie to Be Made in Bay State

Massachusetts workmen have been selected as the best fitted to make an elaborate sword for Queen Marie, to be presented to her when she reviews the 106th Infantry of New York on October 23.

An order for the sword has been placed with the Ames Sword Company of Chicopee.

Prince Carol to Return as Heir to Throne

Paris, Oct. 15 (I.N.S.).—Prince Carol will return to Rumania and resume his place as heir to the throne, as the result of his conversations with Queen Marie here, it was reported today.

The prince's restoration, it is understood, will take place after Queen Marie returns to Rumania.

Queen Marie Expects to Be Bewildered in New York

by Queen Marie of Roumania

Aboard the Leviathan, Oct. 15—How often have I tried to make a mental picture of New York, with its wonderful situation, its splendid harbor, its skyscrapers and the teeming life of its streets!

I have asked many, many Europeans who have been there, what impression it made upon them, and each answer was different, according to the character of the speaker.

Stupendous, over-big, over-noisy, over-busy; not time to think, confusing, stimulating, disconcerting, no poetry, no peace, no atmosphere—but yes, stimulating—astonishingly, pricklingly, vigorously stimulating—overwhelming—and then, always again the accession of STUPENDOUS, for this who liked it least conceded that New York is stupendous.

WILL BE BEWILDERED.

New York, I am sure, will bewilder me, run me off my feet, for all that I am a very active person. The people I am sure I shall like, for are they not composed of all peoples; but they will have to take me exactly as I am—outspoken, not always overcareful of the jokes I make (and which are sometimes misunderstood and not entirely in sympathy with their methods of publicity.

What tales I have heard of American publicity! How it confuses, astonishes our European mind. How did my American newspaper friend put it?

"Oh, it's all excellent dramatization! But it's not badly meant. We are inquisitive, but not ill-natured. Don't fear reporters. Be frank and tell them what they may print. You'll find them good sports and on their honor."

Well, I hope you won't turn the words round in my mouth, that's all!

Europeans say that in New York especially you have no family life, no repose that you are always rushing, always over-busy, that even your amusements, your "sport," is business to you has to be superlatively efficient always, everywhere. But we Europeans like to blunder about a little sometimes.

LOVES FLOWERS.

"My sister, who loves being with you, said to me:

"One thing I know you would adore—their flowers. You who is such are a flower lover would go quite crazy over their exquisite, incomparable flowers. In the great cities they are in the florists' shops. In the West and South they are in the gardens—small paradises of flowers."

And so I add to my mental picture of harbor, sky, skyscrapers, noise, busy efficiency and inquisitive interest, the flowers—most beautiful in all the world.

"Excuse My Laugh!" Says Rumania's Envoy

Washington, Oct. 15 (Universal Service).—Radu V. Iglorani, Charge d'Affaires of the Rumanian Legation, flatly denied reports from abroad that he had resigned because of row over arrangements for Queen Marie's visit to the United States.

"Excuse me for laughing at the report, but I could not resign if I desired," declared Iglorani.

A dispatch from Vienna had credited him with forwarding his resignation to Bucharest, because he would not take orders from Loie Fuller, dancer and friend of the Queen, who has been making plans for Her Majesty's visit.

YANKEE SWAINS SEND ILEANA LOVE NOTES

S. S. Leviathan, Oct. 15 (A.P.).—American youth in large numbers are pressing their suit with much ardor for the hand of Princess Ileana of Rumania.

And the elements of jealousy of other suitors and self-praise for himself have found their way into the missive of at least one young man in the United States who has proposed marriage.

While Queen Marie in her suite listens in on the radio or reads at the Leviathan shapes her course for New York, the pretty young Princess—she has just turned eighteen—pores over a large parcel of letters, couched in terms of endearment, received in Paris and brought on board the liner by her to kill dull moments during the voyage.

GETS "KICK" OUT OF NOTES.

Ileana is getting quite a "kick" out of the correspondence. This was particularly true when she perused the letter of the jealous youth who pleaded for her love.

"Don't pay any attention to other Americans seeking the hand of your highness," it said. "They are no good. I am the man for you."

There is one young American on board the Leviathan who has a good lead on the letter writers ashore. He already has captivated Ileana and also her mother.

"Is the Queen nicer than you?" asked the young man of Ileana, and after the Princess had assured him she was she arranged a visit for him to the royal suite to meet the woman who is considered the handsomest of all handsome queens.

MRS. WILSON IS HOSTESS.

The lad is Sidney Heller of New Rochelle, N. Y. He is four years old.

Today was the birthday of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who is a passenger on the Leviathan, and Queen Marie and Princess Ileana were to be her guests at a tea party in Mrs. Wilson's stateroom.

North Dakota Bank Closes

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 15 (A.P.).—The City National Bank of Bismarck, with deposits of more than $800,000, has been closed. It was reported officials received notice from the National Banking Department not to open until the arrival of a bank examiner.

From More than 50 Teachers and Students of Cookery

Come these Astonishing Reports

CLASSES IN DOMESTIC SCIENCE AND HOME COOKING
made careful tests of White Rose Bread. They tested it for flavor, for texture, for keeping qualities. They studied the recipe. Every woman will be interested in their enthusiastic reports.

{READ WHAT these leading teachers of domestic science and students of cookery say about WHITE ROSE BREAD}

Texture

"The texture is very fine . . . not coarse . . . more like cake texture."

"From the first slice cut from a fresh loaf to the last slice cut from a loaf four days old, there were practically no crumbs when cut."

"Its moist, fine-grained texture closely resembles the best home-made loaf."

Keeping quality

"It retains its moisture in a manner truly unusual. There is an absence of 'sogginess.'"

"There is a little change in the bread from the second to the seventh day—and only a slight loss of moisture on the second day."

Flavor

"It more nearly approaches home-made bread than any loaf with which we compared it."

"Has a home-made smell—a deliciously sweet and nutty flavor."

General comments

"I believe this to be the perfect loaf of baker's white bread."

"Only once before, during a period of fifteen years of constant scientific application to food study, have I been able to render so favorable a report as the one inclosed herewith covering a thorough test I have myself made, and a series of tests groups of my students at the University have made with the samples of this new loaf."

A LOAF perfected with the help of leading authorities on food and cooking

FROM women everywhere—teachers and students of cooking, practical housewives with years of experience in their own kitchens—come the most enthusiastic comments on White Rose Bread.

Above we are quoting just a few of them!

Leading food authorities—women to whom thousands of other women the country over turn for advice in their own problems of home cooking and family diet—helped to perfect this new White Rose loaf.

They have given their time and experience in order that you might have as fine a loaf of bread as it is possible to make. No wonder more and more women are turning to White Rose Bread each day!

Try this new loaf yourself. Notice its texture—firm and even, like the moist fresh home-made loaves you remember in your childhood.

Notice how smoothly it slices without crumbling—how evenly it toasts. Notice, too, its wonderful keeping qualities—not just for a day but for several days.

Give your family White Rose Bread today. White Rose Bread is baked not once but twice daily and rushed to your grocer—always fresh whenever you buy. Massachusetts Baking Co.

"Croute aux Fruits"
as served at the AMBASSADOR HOTEL
New York

Take stale bread (¾ loaf), cut in slices half an inch thick and two inches in length, dip them in beaten eggs (2) mixed with a little milk (1 cup) and fry in butter. Sprinkle with sugar and glaze in oven toaster. Arrange same on a round platter in a crown. In the middle put a fruit salad made with cooked fruit (1 pint) and cover with an apricot sauce. Serve very hot.

(The above is one of the countless recipes showing how famous chefs throughout the country are using bread in making many delicious dishes.)

FOLLOWS WIFE IN LEAP

New York, Oct. 12.—"Here I go!" shouted Mrs. Sarah Gaspin, 37, leaping from the second-story window of a tenement at No. 316 West 46th street after a quarrel with her husband. "I'm on my way down," echoed Gaspin as he leaped after her.

Mrs. Gaspin suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries. She is dying. Gaspin got off easier, with a fractured left hip and internal injuries. At the hospital it was said he would recover.

Dr. Marsh Speaker

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 13.—Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston University, was the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Rotary Club at the Rockingham.

SEEK BURGLARS IN OPEN STORE

The store of M. Lassiter & Bro., uniform makers, No. 3 Washington street, was the scene of a burglar hunt early today.

The policemen in the room and a light burning in the building gave a clue to their hiding place, and, after two more shots had been fired, and rather more threats, A search of the place showed no sign of disturbance. An employe, it is believed, sent home and left conditions as police found them.

GIRLS, HIDE YOUR AGE! PUBLIC WILL BENEFIT

New York, Oct. 13.—A French woman who estimates her age at 3 pubilic benefaction, in the view of Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk, the determination to stay young sets up higher standards for men.

Suzanne Is Eager to See Wonderful City of Boston

The Boston Evening American has received from Suzanne Lenglen as she was scheduled to leave New York for this city today, the following greeting to Bostonians:

"Dear Boston—Please tell the people of your wonderful city, which is known throughout the world for its culture and tremendous educational institutions, that I am looking forward to my stay in Boston with the keenest of pleasure.

"I have never had the opportunity to see the home of gradually the earnest desire on previous visits to glorious America."

GET IN LINE FOR MARTHA LEE PRIZE TODAY

The second question in the Martha Lee Homemakers' Contest, put on by the Boston Evening American, is printed today. The second question in the biggest and best contest yet, and that's saying a lot, for every one of the Martha Lee contests have been hailed with enthusiasm by thousands.

If you are a homemaker and within reach of the Boston Evening American, you are invited to join in the fun and try for one of the big cash prizes. Today is the second day, with the second question of the set of thirty-three. Thirty-three questions, beginning October 14, and ending Saturday, November 20, 1926.

There you are. There's the money and here's the second question.

Should macaroni be put on to cook in cold or boiling water?

Remember the names of the judges. They are familiar friends of yours. Mrs. Ida M. Hebbard president of the Housekeepers' League, Miss Alice Bradley, principal of Miss Farmer's School of Cookery, and your own Martha Lee will pass the final word upon the winners.

Mrs. Della T. Lutes, housekeeping editor of Modern Priscilla, Caroline S. Saunders, director of Home Economics at LaSalle Seminary, and Mrs. Gladys B. Jones of the Garland School of Homemaking will act with these judges as a special advisory committee.

RULES ARE SIMPLE.

The rules governing Martha Lee's Homemakers' contest are:

Beginning October 14 for 33 consecutive publication days the Boston Evening American will print a coupon containing a question on some phase of homemaking. Contest will end Saturday, November 20, 1926. Everyone is invited to enter this contest. Simply cut out the coupon and answer the question, or, if you prefer, use other paper on which to write question and answer.

The prize winner will be those whose sets of answers, in the opinion of the judges, most accurately and practically and intelligently provide the requested information. The judges will be Mrs. Ida M. Hebbard, president of the Housekeepers' League, Miss Alice Bradley, principal of Miss Farmer's School of Cookery, and your own Martha Lee, household economist of the Boston Evening American.

The first prize will be $500 cash. Thirty-nine other cash prizes will be given. Second prize, $150, third prize $75, fourth prize $40, fifth prize $20, ten prizes of $10 each, and twenty-five prizes of $5, each.

Complete Sets.

Answers must be submitted in complete sets of thirty-three answers, arranged in order. DO NOT SEND IN ANY ANSWERS BEFORE THE CLOSE OF THE CONTEST. All sets of thirty-three answers must be mailed, POSTAGE FULLY PREPAID AT FIRST CLASS to the Homemakers' Contest Judges, Boston Evening American, P. O. Box 110, Boston, Massachusetts and postmarked not later than Saturday, November 20th, 1926.

Contestants may send in as many sets as they desire but no contestant shall be entitled to more than one prize. Entries bearing insufficient postage will not be received. No sets of answers will be returned by the Boston Evening American.

This contest is open to everyone except employes or families of employes of the Boston Evening American and affiliated newspapers.

It is not necessary for a contestant to purchase the Boston Evening American to enter this contest. Tracings of the contest coupons can be made from files at the Boston Evening American or any public library.

KEEN FIGHT FOR COMMANDER OF LEGION

Philadelphia, Oct 15 (A.P.).—With Paris selected as the scene of the 1927 convention, the next objective, delegates to the eighth annual meeting of the American Legion entered upon their final deliberations today.

Practically all the business for the year has been completed and most of the legionnaires made ready to return to their homes happy at the thought that next year will see thousands of them visiting familiar scenes in France as part of the "Second A. E. F."

The most important event on today's program was the election of a new national commander to succeed Commander John R. Mcquigg, and five new vice-commanders. The names of General Pershing, whom many legionnaires had hoped would lead the "Second A. E. F." to France, and Colonel William Mitchell, former assistant chief of the army air service, also mentioned as a possible new commander, probably will not be offered as both have announced that they are not candidates for the office.

Three others, however, all of whom are candidates for the post, were being boosted by their supporters as the hour for election drew near.

They were J. Monroe Johnson of Marion, South Carolina; Howard P. Savage of Chicago and Edward E. Spafford of New York. Savage is a past commander of the Illinois department, while Spafford formerly was the head of the New York department.

All indications point a close and keenly fought contest.

PEACHES 'ESCAPED BEING FORCED INTO 'CULT'

She told Mr. Browning the key to youth and he was very much impressed.

He got all excited and telephoned me to come to his office to meet her. Evidently he thought she could tell me some things that would keep me always young like I am now. She was also attractive to him.

She was frank in her discussion. She gave him hope of eternal youth.

Mr. Browning is an ardent seeker after youth and its pleasures and joys. I believe he would do anything to obtain the secret of always being young and he has followed many paths which he thought might lead to the "Fountain of Youth."

He believed this love cult priestess possessed the secret and he appeared anxious to have me probe those mysteries. On several occasions this woman was with us and Mr. Browning was disappointed because I would not welcome her with open arms.

She further impressed him by giving a numerology reading of his horoscope and mine. Needless to say it was very favorable and Mr. Browning was tremendously pleased when these readings were published.

This woman had written her experiences for a newspaper. She gave them to Mr. Browning and he brought them home one night. He wanted me to read them but I refused.

The only love that appeals to me is that pure ecstatic love which exists between a wife and husband who are really and truly in love with each other. But Mr. Brown ing appeared interested in all sorts of affairs connected with love.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

"Women Are With Me!" What Browning Says

New York, Oct. 15.—With letters to the right of him, letters to the left of him, letters behind him, Edward W. Browning declared that the women of America are with him, sympathizing and trying to lighten his sorrow.

"Peaches," some of the letters declare, should never have left such a devoted husband. Hundreds of writers criticize her severely, he said. Others, sincere, but ignorant of the law, propose marriage to him.

Browning, sitting in his office at No. 153 West Seventy-second street, devoted much of his time to sorting and reading these letters, classifying those he said were worth while. Letters from cranks and schemers were weeded out by office assistants.

FILL BASKETS.

The Boston Evening American publishes exclusively today some of the letters received by Browning. The stacks, filling many bushel baskets, are gathered by Browning's staff at his office, where a reporter for the Boston Evening American also scanned many of them. They are postmarked from all over the United States. The writers, however, are from New York, Brooklyn and vicinity.

Here is what Browning said of the writers:

"I believe that these women are sincere and that they are with me in my troubles with 'Peaches.' The letters show that they sympathize with me in my plight. Women everywhere—Pottsville, Pa., Oakland, Cal., Peabody, N. J.—are writing. I thank them through the columns of the Boston Evening American. They have kind thoughts of me. They see how I am troubled.

"In going over the thousands of letters which I have received since 'Peaches' left me, I note many that criticize her. Those I will refrain from publishing, in justice to her, despite all she is saying about me. They are harsh, and for her sake I will not give them out.

SOME PROPOSE.

"Other letters contain proposals of marriage. Many women willing to me, proposing before I am free. These letters I classify and withhold from publication. I thank the writers, but they do not understand, apparently, that a man, married as I am, cannot take another wife—not now, anyway.

"Some of these sympathetic women want to marry me at once. They say that they feel certain I am a man, judging from my actions. This is most kind of them.

"They don't believe what 'Peaches' says. How could they, in view of those pretty things she said about me when writing her honeymoon diary? Any one can see there is something wrong when a wife says one thing and then turns around and says another, as 'Peaches' is quoted as saying.

FROM BOSTON.

"I am swamped with letters. Those from cranks annoy me, but that is to be expected. The sympathetic letters balance these.

"Other writers want to wait until I'm freed from 'Peaches.' They write foolishly.

Browning's hand at this point fell on a batch of letters, which he gave to a reporter for the Boston Evening American. Some few, taken at random, are printed in full. Others will appear at a later date.

A young woman living in Harvard, says:

"I am writing because I feel very sorry for you. To think that you were so good as to help people along and then how they could turn around and talk as they do.

"I am nineteen and I have been in New York one month. I came from Boston, Mass. I must say I believe in you, not because I want what other girls are looking for, because we may never meet, but because I must write to you, Mr. Browning, that I wish you all the luck in the world."

Pottsville, Pa., was put on the Browning map by "Dimples," who wrote as follows:

"Dear Mr. Browning:

"I sincerely hope that you do not bear your sorrow alone; also that today your heart may find comfort in my sympathy for you, which is entirely too deep for words to say.

"Very sincerely,

"DIMPLES."

A letter from Peapack, N. J., signed by the name Martha Riley, proved to Browning that he has a backstop in that quaint town. This read:

"Mr. Browning:

"I hasten to offer my sympathy to you in your sad disappointment in your house. But cheer up, there is always a silver lining under the black cloud. It will appear sooner or later.

"MARTHA RILEY."

"Dimples" sent her letter to the Hotel Emerson, where Mr. Browning is now stopping. The other one was directed to No. 153 West Seventy-second street, where he has a real estate office.

A writer signing herself as Miss M. S. Nelson wrote to Browning, in paper of the Los Angeles Biltmore, and in an envelope postmarked Oakland, Cal., to this effect:

"Dear Mr. Browning:

"It was with deep regret I read of your unhappiness in the papers. And I hope you will find real sincere love and happiness in the near future. My dear father has spoken so much about you I feel I know you well.

FATHER KNEW HIM.

"He was a prominent physician and knew you between the ages of eighteen and twenty-five. I think the interest you have shown and the love for children should bring its own reward in great happiness. Why don't you take a trip to our beautiful coast cities, and I feel sure the rest and comfort will help you in many ways, where I am entirely alone, as my father has been gone several years now.

"If my friendship could help you in any way, I would be very happy.

"Wishing you all happiness.

"Believe me sincerely yours,

"(MISS) M. S. NELSON."

Browning said that he had been served with no papers and but no definite information regarding a suit which it was reported was to be brought against him by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Katherine Honan, and his wife, "Peaches" Honan Browning.

Browning was asked if he was going to start a suit himself. His reply was:

"I have nothing to say on that just now. I am very busy and must beg to be excused from answering any series of questions."

Mrs. Honan said, according to an interview, that I married "Peaches" for her youth. An attempt, apparently, is being made to get me into a serious controversy. I will thoroughly answering any questions that she might ask."

"Can you give any reason why you postponed the important announcement you said would be forthcoming?"

"No. You are pressing me too hard. I say things and I might give hints which the reporters misinterpret."

"Why did you change your mind?"

"Because certain things are not settled as yet. It takes time. I thought that the matter would be ready to discuss but it is not.

"There has been no attempt by me toward bringing about a reconciliation. I have not heard from 'Peaches.' I have not heard from her mother. I don't know where they are and I feel that I should forget them for the time being so that I can devote my time to business.

Noted English Singer Wins Hub Praise

By MOSES SMITH

Miss [illegible] an English soprano, and widely known as a writer of "Backbay" articles and musical parodies, made her Boston debut at a concert in Jordan Hall before a good-sized audience last night.

Although [illegible] heart in Jordan Hall [illegible] and better trained voice [illegible] Grey's [illegible] singers as interesting, but has a very strong [illegible] her songs with the aid of an Anglo-Saxon [illegible] actress.

Her interpretations have great range, and she was very convincing last night in changing character during the course of a song, as she did in Gerald Finzi's "The Cupbearer." Throughout the concert there was a sampling [illegible] of very appealing and often very audacious arrangement which was profound to [illegible].

There was a group of North [illegible] songs sung by W. G. Whittaker, another group of [illegible] by Cecil Sharp, songs collected [illegible] the upper [illegible] of [illegible] numbers by contemporary [illegible].

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Fete of St. Christopher at Hotel Somerset Monday Opens Hub Autumn Bazaar Season

Mrs. Benjamin F. Pitman Heads Fine Charity Movement to Give Invalids Paying Employment

THE FETE OF ST. CHRISTOPHER, as staged for the Christopher Shop and commencing Monday at the Hotel Somerset, opens [illegible] bazaar season with a merry whirl. Each and every day and evening of the entire week is an fete.

PRIMITIVE COLORS of Spanish and Italian fiestas side by side with modern Western sophistication, as expressed in modish creations worn by a flock of the season's debutantes. Bridge and [illegible] a mid-week ball in each [illegible] so many other diversions [illegible] program.

MRS. BENJAMIN F. PITMAN with a [illegible] splendid [illegible] with much of local and financial success [illegible] the Christopher [illegible] Patronesses and [illegible] Lieutenants and [illegible] Hotel Manson, long associated with the Shop destinies and Mrs. A. W. Bliss.

PATRONESS AND BUDS [illegible] Leaguers, Pierrot and Pierrette signatories of Sixty and Over, person [illegible] importance galore all are giving [illegible] attention to the affair. Art greatly [illegible] the Christopher Shop benefit [illegible] any.

THIS FINE WORK, long [illegible] lishing and widely known as the James Mason Junior League, as did a solid good work as the Wide Over League. Now it is an amalgamation of the first named with the Occupational Therapists, and goes forward as the Christopher Shop to help invalids.

MAINTAINING a clearing house for these invalids' work is the scope. To help make them self-supporting, to assure them an income and to find a market for their handiwork. The Shop first buys from the maker and then sells [illegible].

IN NEW QUARTERS at No. 855 Boylston street friends of the Shop are cordially welcomed. Articles of great variety, carefully [illegible] fashioned by patient hands, things useful, ornamental or beautiful (or all three) may be had. And, of course, they'll be on sale at the fete as well.

AFTER THE MOST delightful of stays in the heart of Ireland's hunting country, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] are on the high seas homeward bound. Immediately abroad [illegible] continue [illegible] months, with the most interesting of incentives.

MR. BIRD, with a number of [illegible] associates, proposes to establish in Ireland a hunt club where members may avail themselves of hunting with a famous pack over the finest of Irish hunting country. So he has leased, near Navan in the County of Meath, has been purchased.

IT'S A CHARMING place and naturally Mr. and Mrs. Bird are returning full of enthusiasm for this [illegible] to fact some of the [illegible] have already been established there and the [illegible] and raising hunters is going on [illegible].

ROSES IN SOFT, rich tones were the decorative motif when Miss Carol Rogers was entertained for at the Somerset by her mother, Mrs. Howard L. Rogers, and her aunt, Mrs. Laurence J. Webster.

THE HONOR BUD wore a distinctly smart frock of the new printed velvet, a rich deep black shining with gold and copper design, her hat of black touched with gold.

HOSTESSES WERE equally smart in their more sophisticated gowns—Mrs. Rogers in black crepe and Mrs. Webster in that lovely new hue of rose that Paris votes quite as well as intensely flattering.

Betty Alden

MISS MOLLY WALCOTT

One of the twenty debutantes whose pleasant duty at the Fete of St. Christopher is to wear a lovely creation from a smart shop, as a mannequin in the fashion parade.

Quick Quizzes on the Movies

By BARBARA BENTON

A. N. M., JAMAICA PLAIN—Charles Farrell will play the lead in Paramount's "special, "Wings." You might call him something of a local [illegible] because he hails from Lynn, and attended Boston University. However, it took more than university and watchful waiting in Hollywood for him to catch on to the big parts. He certainly has "landed" now in the role the director of "Wings" is also assisting of a Bostonian, William Wellman, formerly connected here in the wool trade.

S. L. F., BOSTON—So you think that Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities" would make a great movie? Right, it already has. Way back in 1911, the old Vitagraph did it, with Florence Turner playing Wharfe-her-name, the faithful wife, and Maurice Costello in the dual role of Charles Darnay and Sidney Carton.

C. E. M., BROCKTON—Correct! Leonore Bushman is the daughter of Francis X. Bushman. She is playing with Mae Murray in "Altars of Desire."

D. S. F., CAMBRIDGE—Cullen Landis is playing in "The Smoke Eater" with Wanda Hawley. Yes, a good [illegible].

M. F. G., BOSTON—Nita Naldi's next picture you have me [illegible] card from, was in Germany doing something or other over there. [illegible] press a time she has put [illegible] which [illegible] for the [illegible] used to play.

F. T. B., TAUNTON—If Jack Pickford [illegible] returning from his recent [illegible] Mary will be [illegible] Lew Cody will play with Joe Cook in "Tell It to the Marines."

TUBERCULOSIS SEAL SALE CAMPAIGN IS PLANNED

At a meeting of 20 secretaries of tuberculosis associations in Eastern Massachusetts, at the Boston Tuberculosis Association today, Mrs. Mary F. Sinks, seal sale expert of the National Tuberculosis Association, discussed methods of conducting a seal sale campaign.

Secretaries were present from Southern Middlesex county, Norfolk and Essex Counties, and representatives from one of the Eastern Massachusetts cities.

Rich, farm land available in many valuable locations. See the Classified Ads. Classification 403.

Final Health Talk

Dr. Edward Balboni will give the last outdoor health talk of the year from the Little Church on Wheels in Ruggles street, near Washington, at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. He will talk on the "Prevention of Disease" under direction of the Boston Tuberculosis Association.

MISSIONARY BOBS GIRLS' LOCKS IN 'OPEN SPACES'

Middletown, Conn., Oct. 15.—Introducing the bobbing parson, the Rev. George B. Gilbert, Episcopal missionary.

By bobbing is meant that the preacher has added clipping locks to his other accomplishments, which include prompting for dances in remote regions of the country.

He has long been a leader for boys, but adopting girls' hair is a new accomplishment. "Just how do it," he says, "because trees in neglected regions can't [illegible] her and yet they were [illegible] bobbed."

Radio Queries

Q—What is the best set on the market to buy for this winter?

J. B. K.

A—That is a question, which pops up every day in the year. In quality of tone, ease in tuning, selectivity, range, etc., the best radio set has never been produced. If speaking about distance from the superheterodynes one hears quite as much about the tuned radio frequency sets. Both will give all the results the average person will ever need. For a complete set, with all accessories, completely installed in excellent cabinet, you will have to pay about $160, of course a much cheaper installation can be put together but it is a fallacy to expect the Fords of radio to give Rolls Royce results.

Q—I have built from one to five tuned radio sets and I would like to enter the amateur field. I know the entire continental code and can also read schematic diagrams. Is there anything else I have to learn or know?

Eli, River A. J.

A—To receive a license as an amateur operator, radio first class, you must be able to send and receive in code at the rate of ten words per minute. Furthermore you must know the national and international laws as they apply to amateur radio stations. The laws can be gotten from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. for fifteen cents not in stamps. You must also be able to draw a complete circuit diagram of the transmitter, receiver, and power supply you wish to use in your amateur station. You must be able to explain elementary theory, although the questions asked are not very difficult. For further details, write to the Radio Supervisor, First District, Custom House, Boston, Mass.

The Grid Leak

There is one place in the receiving set where "static" noise may appear, and that is in the grid leak unit. A noise of this kind may occur every time it is jarred. Sometimes a person walking across the room in which the set is installed will produce the same effect. Loose connections, of course, may be the trouble, but if everything looks reasonably secure, just try changing the grid leak. This unit, though very small in comparison with the rest of the set, is of great import and slightest change in resistance due to a loose contact will create a noise which is amplified many times. It is a good plan to insert a new grid leak in the set each year.

TELLS WHO ARE FRIENDS OF FILIPINOS

For several weeks [illegible] Williams, Jr., editor of the Boston Evening American, has been with the Thompson commission in the Philippines, making a survey of conditions there with the object of determining whether the Filipinos are ready for independence.

Today he presents an opening day opinion by Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War to President Taft, which should be of deep interest to everyone interested in the welfare of the Philippines and the United States from the islands.

By HENRY L. STIMSON,
President Taft's Secretary of War.

Manila, P. I., Oct. 15.—I arrived [illegible] with Dr. Conant in the midst of the Philippines in bids for self-government and independence with no rapid advance that they have made during the last twenty-five years in obtaining it.

But self-government and national independence are two quite different things and the latter involves many complications which ought to be considered before any such step is taken.

Many of us have been disappointed to find that the United States should [illegible] could not be counted on to prevent them in case [illegible] threatened with danger from other sources or nations.

DIVIDED ON QUESTION.

There could not be a greater error. So far as the Philippine question is concerned the American people are divided into just two classes.

First those who are willing to take the time, the trouble and thought necessary to work out a satisfactory conclusion this long and difficult problem of the final relations, that can [illegible] the United States. Second those who for one reason or another are willing to [illegible] and who want to get rid of the islands as soon as possible.

I believe that the former are the true friends of the Filipinos and the latter false friends. Every time you agitate here for immediate independence you weaken the hands of your true friends and strengthen those of the others.

One of the first burdens we [illegible] on earth would [illegible] and cans back a [illegible] to take it up again [illegible] more difficult conditions. Connections with America once ended would be ended forever.

MANY WANT ISLANDS.

Now I often wonder whether my Filipino friends realize [illegible] they happen [illegible] They are the only Christian people in the Orient, surrounded by nations of an entirely different race, religion and civilization.

They are a small people living in the [illegible] underpopulated islands of wonderful potential wealth and natural resources. They are surrounded by many larger nations whose territory is overcrowded and who are necessarily hungry for the importance of the Philippines.

The American government sent here as governor-general, Leonard Wood. There is no one living of any nationality, who has made such a record of patient, unarmed and successful service in guiding peoples along the difficult road to self-government, as he has.

In the Southern islands I found an almost pathetic devotion and reliance upon the Governor-General by the leading chefs of the Moros.

But the point at Filipino leaders who assume to represent the [illegible] do not cooperate with Governor General

INDIANA LAWS BORE O. K. OF KLAN HEAD

By COURT ASHER.

Copyright, 1926, by the Boston Evening American Publishing Company.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 13—D. C. Stephenson controlled the 1925 Indiana state Legislature. It was a standing order that all bills before it passed must receive Stephenson O. K.

During the time the Legislature was in session Stephenson was in constant touch with the Ku Klux Klan leaders in Indianapolis. We kept [illegible] and [illegible] at the State House. There were almost [illegible] conferences with Republican and Democratic state and county officials.

What I was interested in [illegible] was of certain bills—[illegible] I collected them—the bills that meant money in our pockets and spoils to be divided. Probably the most important of these was the measure called the "Road Ripper" bill, abolishing the State Highway Commission.

The plan called for the creation of a "Hammond supply company" through which all supplies were to be purchased and all contracts let. In other words, a purchasing agent privately operated under contract to the State. Stephenson was to be a member of the board of directors and he planned to invite officials of the machine to sit at the directors' table with him.

PROMISED MILLIONS

"We'll make millions—we'll all be millionaires," Stephenson told those of us who were in his confidence. "Put this bill over, boys, and we'll all be able to retire for life."

There was a conference in the Washington Hotel shortly before the bill was to be introduced.

"Just [illegible]," Stephenson assured [illegible]. "I am not going to select a country, rather than a city man to introduce the bill, as I find it will not be charged to our organization. We're going to abolish the highway commission, and clean out every department."

Some one suggested the first thing to do would be to get John D. Williams, state highway commissioner.

"You can't handle him, 'Steve,'" Stephenson was advised. "He isn't that kind. It'll get rid of him and have the job to [illegible]—Here?"

"All right," Stephenson agreed.

"Steve" then proceeded to outline his plans for organization of the "Hammond Supply Company" already was under way, he said. All supplies for the state of Indiana and all contracts for the construction of roads and bridges were to be let through this company, which was to be a holding corporation and control the business throughout the state.

Stephenson announced he would control the sale of all the coal purchased for use in State institutions.

He offered one of these present a commission on all automobile supplies bought by the state.

He asked this man in turn to use his office to discredit the highway commission.

GOVERNOR BALK

"You can wreck it," he pointed out. "Get something criminal on the heads of the department—smash them. That's what we've got to do."

J. Glen Harris, representative from Lake County, was asked to find some one who could be trusted to present the bill to the Legislature. Stephenson suggested Ku Klugger of Whitley County. Then Stephenson went to Governor Jackson, and demanded Williams' resignation as highway commissioner.

To "Steve's" amazement and disgust the Governor refused.

Stephenson fairly roared his wrath.

A day or so later, the Legislature, upon motion of Representative Harris, appointed a subcommittee to "investigate" the State highways commission. Shortly thereafter Governor Jackson called in Williams and demanded his resignation.

Williams refused to resign. That night there was another meeting presided over by Stephenson.

An executive in the state board of accounts department could easily [illegible] Williams. "Steve" [illegible] Williams could be [illegible]. Miraculously—a certain judge, "Steve" said, was a Klansman and friendly, and one of the deputy prosecuting attorneys under Will Remy could be depended upon to keep Remy "Out of the way," until indictments were voted.

"We've got to get Williams out of the way," Stephenson told over and over again. "I stand to make or lose millions on this bill. If we put this over, I'm going to see that each of you boys [illegible] some sort of rake-off that will make you rich.

(Another chapter of Court Asher's startling expose will be published tomorrow in the Boston Evening American.)

A Modern Romance With a Charming Heroine

By Hazel Livingston

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Rosemary Merton, youngest daughter in a large Roxbury family, rebels at her poor surroundings and dreams of romance and luxury. She is attending college, but quits and gets a job in a fashionable bookstore through a friend, Nona Clark. She meets a group of artists who have a studio on the top floor which they call the Secret Studio. One Sunday Rosemary and Larry Kane, one of the artists, go to the studio alone, where they are surprised by Sloan Whitney. Rosemary later meets Whitney and is strongly attracted to him. One afternoon in the Studio Larry is interrupted by a screaming girl who accuses Larry. He tries to explain to Rosemary.

CHAPTER 28.

"DEAR, this is something that was all over before I even met you. I'm so much older than you are, sweet. You see, I must have known other girls. This—this Germaine was Madame Berthe's helper. She met me when I used to go in to say "Hello," and maybe have a little drink with Berthe. Well—she isn't a nice girl, Rosemary. That's—that's all."

"That's all!"

"Well, she's trying to force me to marry her. Can't do it—so not."

"Larry, you've got to marry her. Continued on Page 23, Column 3.

HUB DIETICIAN GIVES 'MENUS FOR HEALTH'

"Perfect menus" designed to prolong life and prevent such ailments as heartburn and indigestion are being recommended by Boston dietitians.

According to Miss Elizabeth Barden, of the Boston Dispensary Food Clinic, America eats too much starch and the remedy for gastric ailments, heartburn and possible shortening of one's years is a defensive diet program.

"The ideal breakfast for the new 'perfect menu' is fruit and slightly warmed milk, sipped very slowly—the latter point being very important," said Miss Barden. "Should one, however, desire a heavier breakfast, a glass of orange juice should be taken an hour before to counteract the effect."

Following is a list of the 'perfect menus' arranged by Miss Barden:

Breakfast—Sliced orange, whole raw milk—or three fresh dates and figs on lettuce with cottage cheese and buttered toast.

Lunch—Whole wheat roll bonbons, Brussels sprouts and vegetable salad.

Dinner—Baked potatoes, green peas, cabbage salad, black coffee and hard candy or steamed brown rice, spinach and green string beans.

Chew your food slowly and sit still for at least 20 minutes after each meal, is the parting admonition of the diet specialists.

Interviews With Bankers Have Optimistic Keynote

By B. C. FORBES

PACIFIC COAST, Oct. 15.—Cheerfulness ruled among the thousands of bankers who met here in Los Angeles to attend the annual pow-wow of the American Bankers Association—the largest ever, with the sole exception of that held in New York.

Last yesterday's column, presenting the shades in the business picture, as it may have been interpreted as bearish, let me hasten to give you brief bits from the many interviews with representative bankers which have been appearing in the newspapers. You will readily gather that the good features of cautiousness and the near future been sufficient to offset the optimism regarding the outlook.

B. C. Forbes

Melvin A. Traylor, the new president of the A. B. A. and President of the First National Bank of Chicago:

"Business in the Chicago territory is continuing to run in a satisfactory volume. Forward orders are not large but current demands are sufficient to keep equipment and labor well employed. There is some complaint of the keenness of competition with its resultant narrowing of profits. Reports from the principal agricultural States are on the whole encouraging. The agricultural situation is actually improving despite difficulties is unquestionably growing less. The purchasing power of the agricultural district this Fall promises to be very good."

T. R. PRESTON, vice president T. A. B. A. and President of the Hamilton National Bank, Chattanooga, Tennessee.

"General business for 1926 will likely exceed in volume the year 1925 which was one of the most prosperous ever known. Much of our prosperity, I think is due to the reduction in taxes, but these are still much too high."

ALEX DUNBAR, Bank of Pittsburgh:

"The Pittsburgh district is happy and prosperous with the single exception of the soft coal industry."

FRANCIS H. SISSON, Guaranty Trust Company, New York:

We have reached the point when continued rather than increasing prosperity seems to be the promise of the future. It can hardly be expected that the ratio of increase whereby 1925 surpasses 1924 and 1926 exceeded 1925, can be maintained in 1927 and yet there is little doubt that business throughout the country is very satisfactory and will continue at a high level during the balance of this year. The prosperity which is prevalent throughout the country as a whole is strongly reflected in California."

JAMES D. HOOD, Dexter Horton National Bank, Seattle, Washington:

"It would be quite difficult for any prophet to picture the wonderful outlook for the States of the Pacific Coast, to which part of the United States the attention of business and banking leaders is probably more closely directed than ever before."

WARREN BROS. AFTER BIG CUBAN CONTRACT

Board of Awards on road contracts in Havana, failed to let as many as the bids on the Central highway and this was extended 20 days for new proposals. An idea provided a finance agency by issuing a loan and permanent treaty terms opposed by Machado. Machado claims features of agreement are incredible necessity of a loan and contractors do not desire to take up work unless money is in sight. This is the contract on which Warren Bros. of Boston are bidding.

There is a $15,000,000 road fund in the treasury, and collections will be less than $10,000,000 yearly, but it is possible to augment this amount to $20,000,000 from general fund. Road costs are $60,000,000 and the government favors its being built in four years without loan feature the contractors to carry the cost without right of diplomatic appeal.

GAS TO BE USED TO RUN NEW ICE MACHINE

A gas-operated ice machine or refrigerator, noiseless in operation and requiring no servicing, will be introduced in New York by Consolidated Gas Co. Jan. 1, 1927, N. T. Bill man, engineer of the company, told American Gas Association in Atlantic City.

HIGHER FARE ON 'L' NEVER POSSIBLE

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Chairman Samuel L. Powers of the public trustees of the Boston Elevated says what a Zeigfeld comedian now in Boston calls "a flock of words" when he states an increase in "L" fares would be "most unfortunate from every point of view."

• • •

Chairman Powers is replying to the succession of Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols for increased "L" service and voices the decision of the public trustees but not to bind the Governor square subway.

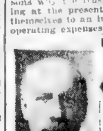
Chairman Powers concludes:

"We have considered all the point where we cannot assume for the present that it is character and maintain our rates. The surplus earnings of the Elevated for the year ending June, 1926, amounted to $22,000; for the year ending June 1925, to $20,000 and for the year ending June, 1924, there was neither loss nor gain in the operation of the road.

"If we assume that the cost of the Hoyleston st ed extension would be $5,000,000 and that 4 per cent would be fixed as a return, would amount to about $200,000 which would become a part of the Elevated revenues. This would mean a deficit in the operation of the road and require an increase in fares.

"From the figures I have already given you, you can readily understand that the surplus earnings of the Elevated do not increase in the same to come, an increase in rate would be required to make a deficit which must be met by an increase in fares, which would be most unfortunate from every point of view. These are some of the reasons why the trustees are not willing at the present time to commit themselves to an increase in annual operating expenses."



Samuel L. Powers

Mayor Nichols

As repeatedly pointed out in this column, there can be no reasonable question of attempting to collect more than a 10-cent fare on street cars in Boston such a move would increase the profits of those corporations who instituted it. We have previously expressed the conviction that "L" common stock is worth more than below its real value largely because of the political uncertainties that surround it. With a 10 cent fare under private management, the latter believes, "L" common stock would sell at not less than $100 a share instead of at $82.50, the present figure.

In line with our suggestion printed under the headline "Workers Interested," the management of the Boston & Maine is establishing a precedent for the New England railroads. Employes of Boston & Maine Railroad received announcement today of a plan whereby they can purchase a limited number of shares of the new 7 per cent. prior preferences stock, which the directors have bought for the purpose. These shares, quoted on the Boston Stock Exchange recently at 70@70½, are offered employed at 100, and provision is made for payment by instalments. Under the plan the railroad is allowing employes 7 per cent interest, compounded semi-annually during the instalment period making total cost payment $83.33 a share. Employes may be from [illegible] and are permitted to [illegible] service [illegible] & Maine.

Those July 1, 1924 are eligible to purchase. The offer is open until November 10.

The suicide at sea of D. F. Davis, who started the Davis Islands development in Tampa Bay, Florida, should have no effect upon this real estate operation. This development was taken over by Stone & Webster of Boston several months ago. Although Mr. Davis remained a director and retained a minority interest he had relinquished active part in the management.

Herb Treat Predicts 14 to 7 Victory for Dartmouth Over Yale Tomorrow

By HERB TREAT

FOOTBALL comes into its own at last.

The season seems unusually late this year, due to the hit of the century, the world series of the century and many r sporting events of the century, which tended to sidetrack e reat Fall game.

Tomorrow we will have a difficult time trying to decide h game to pick out to attend. All appear to be real battles d little scoring will be evidenced. Hunches won't count tomorrow; the teams will win that have just a slight edge, whether t be mental or physical, and it looks pretty even in most cases.

From the information at hand of the respective teams, my hoices are based as follows:

Yale-Dartmouth (1925—No game).

These two teams will meet in a game which will be the play-off of the tie to 14 tie of 1924. In that game Dartmouth would have won had it not been for poor generalship by Eddie Dooley, the present Green quarter ack. Teams on paper appear evenly matched, Yale's line, being bigger and more experienced, looks better than the Big Green's, while in the backfield the edge goes to Dartmouth.

The Hanover quartette is composed of Dooley, MacPhail, Horton and Jones, with some five reserves for replacements. Speed in mind and body and plenty of drive and power. The Eli backs are good, but Bunnell, Kline, Noble and Foote lack the power and drive of Dartmouth a set.

Hawley's Plays Deceptive

Ivan Hawley is a wizard at the aerial defense. All his plays are based on deception and perfect timing while Yale has usually the same old power plays with little or no deception. Dartmouths' forward passing attack is better and more diversified.

Both teams have suffered early season injuries and will take the field in about the same physical condition. Hawley is a past master at keeping a team from becoming over confident and so the Big Green should take the field a slight favorite over the Bull Dogs.

A close game, a great battle and my score is Dartmouth 14 Yale 7.

Princeton-Navy (1925—Princeton 10, Navy 10).

The Navy and the Tigers meet again. These two teams always provide a bitterly contested struggle and the result is always close. Due to the injuries on the Princeton squad and the 7 to 7 tie last week by Washington & Lee it is quite probable that the midshipmen will go into the game a 3 to 1 favorite. Had Princeton won last week the betting would be even and, I believe the Navy's chances better than they are by.

Knowing Roper as I do, I am sure he has his team on edge and the beating that week will be used as the foundation of his heated attacks upon his men to illustrate to them their shortcomings and so curb any over-confidence which seemed sure to crop out in Nassau camp this week.

Princeton will be hard to defeat the rest of the year. Injuries or no injuries the Tigers are strong and even though Jake Slagle is out of the game. Ted Williams and Joe Pendergast will fill his shoes with Ingram of the Navy has brought his team along splendidly and has made a fine showing to date—there are many veterans in the line up and the going will be rocky for the Tigers.

The outcome will be close—a good chance for a tie but perhaps Sam Boling will win the game with a drop kick. I'll take the short under.

Princeton 10, Navy 7.

Syracuse-Army (1925—No game).

Syracuse has eight of last year's regulars in the line-up has piled up 75 points to 0; and not a single first down has been made against them.

Syracuse Should Beat Army

Coach Pete Reynolds of Syracuse has the best team in years at the Salt City college. The big Orange squad has hit midseason form, and with Captain Vic Hansen in shape to head his team of veterans against the Cadets, it doesn't appear too favorable for the Army tomorrow. The combination scores against week opposition is about equal. A new system is in the making at West Point, while at Syracuse the squad is well drilled in the Reynolds methods.

It should be a thriller. I like the Orange by a couple of scores.

Syracuse 20 Army 7.

Columbia-Ohio State (1925—Ohio State 9, Columbia 0).

There is quite a bit of local color attached to this great intersectional game which will be played in New York tomorrow. Andy Oberlander of Dartmouth and Everett, assistant coach at Ohio State and will match his wits against Charley Crowley and Billy Murray, the Columbia coaches, both of Boston.

The Ohio State squad, hand at al, looks to be bigger and better than the Lions. The Buckeyes will present a forward passing attack which will be possibly better than anything we can show in the east except Dartmouth's. Dr. Wiles and Oberlander each know the passing game inside and out and their team should score three touchdowns via the aerial route.

Crowley's team lacks big game experience and is for the most part a green Dartmouth team. Columbia will do well to hold the Buckeyes to a small score.

Ohio State 20 Columbia 7

Harvard-William & Mary (1925—Harvard 14, W. & M. 7).

The two oldest colleges in this country will have their representative football teams meet in a gridiron affair tomorrow at Harvard Stadium. Traditionally the two elevens will lock horns with all comers and make a fine showing but athletically for some reason or other neither team has much to offer. Harvard, as we stated earlier in the year, will make a better showing as the season goes along. In tomorrow's game I believe the Crimson will get going. Injuries to such men as French and Miller will slow up the attack a great deal. The forward pass defense should be improved, if not, Dartmouth looms dangerous for next week. William & Mary, it will be remembered, gave the Crimson a scare last year and might again tomorrow, but the Harvard reserves and great desire to get going should be enough to overcome the weaker opponent by 13 points.

Harvard 20, W. & M. 7.

WILDCATS, BEARS NOR BULLDOGS CAUSE GEO. WILSON ANY WORRY

DOCILE WILDCAT
is this one that Geo. Wilson, Pacific coast football ace, is holding. Much more docile, in fact, than the eleven Wildcats of the gridiron Mister Wilson will lead against Herb Treat's Bulldogs.

EDUCATED TOE
Is one of Wilson's greatest grid assets. He boots the pigskin high and far. Hub fans will get their first view of the Western phenom at Braves Field tomorrow.

HE'S A BEAR
Which? Both of 'em. After getting in trim by wrestling full-grown Brutes, Wil son should be able to annihilate a few victory-hungry Bulldogs before leaving the Hub.

Runyon Predicted Sharkey Would Beat Harry Wills

By DAMON RUNYON

SIGNOR HUMBERT FUGAZY, the pugilistic entrepreneur of Ebbets Field and Mr. Lou Raymond, who is a sort of fill-e brother to the Manly Art of Scrambling Ears in general, match-maker, promoter and whatnot at with a small table between them in a cafe one evening not long ago, their noses almost touching.

I was at another table watching them and wondering what great beefs these lighthearted boys were about to confer on the public when Signor Fugazy signed me to a pooch them.

"How do you think Harry Wills and Jack Sharkey will go?" asked Signor Fugazy.

"Sharkey will knock his eyes off" I replied pleasantly.

"I don't mean it's said Signor Fugazy, hastily, glaring at Mr. Raymond. "I mean on the level."

"Why, I don't mean it either," said Mr. Raymond, hastily, glaring at Signor Fugazy. "I mean on the level."

"Where are you boys headed for?" inquired Mr. Johnson.

"We're going to Boston," said Mr. Raymond.

"Who is he boxing?" I asked.

"It's some sucker named Sharkey," said Mr. Johnson.

"You think he's a sucker?" I asked.

"Well, he'll poke you around until you feel tolerable well."

Mr. Sharkey did pretty well with Mr. Johnson.

Only recently but it now was up in the air, a genuine expression in its own right. I have never met Mr. Fugazy before, but I have always had a profound respect for the brotherly pudding he makes. Mr. Raymond is also a member of Lou's Big Stick Club of Lower Broadway.

"Where are you going?" I asked.

"We're going to Boston," said the good Baron, "George here he's going to fight that Jack Sharkey."

"What's George Rapline about?" I inquired.

"Oh, he got hurt in a fight with Tiny Jim Herman out in Portland, Oregon and he's still lame," said the Baron.

"I see," I said, "so you're going to try to bet Jack Sharkey with a crippled guy so you'll have better positions to bet your money? Say, I'll tell you what I'll do with Sharkey."

"Wills will look pathetic trying to hit Sharkey."

WILSON LOOKS FOR VICTORY IN BOSTON

Invading the East for the first time since Georges Wilson All-American Pacific Coast University Wildcats of Western Washington will make a stand against Boston College's Eagles at Braves Field tomorrow afternoon in a game billed as a battle between two of the greatest backfield stars in football today. Coach Bill Wilson, who has been hailed as the equal of Pop Warner, Knute Rockne and Percy Haughton in football circles, has brought his team to Boston with the belief that it can defeat the Eagles and Coach Frank Wilson of Boston College has declared that his team would win. Both teams are members of the Pacific Coast Conference, one of the strongest football leagues in the country.

Wilson's team is built around Georges Wilson and Leo Lassen, two of the most brilliant backfield players in the country. Wilson is a triple threat star and Lassen is a great passer and punter. Both players have been selected on All-American teams by many critics.

Coach Wilson's team has defeated Washington State College, Montana University, Oregon Agricultural College, Oregon University, Idaho University, Washington University and Whitman College. The Pacific Coast team has scored 210 points to its opponents' 20.

Coach Frank Wilson's Eagles have defeated Holy Cross, Fordham, Villanova, Providence College, Georgetown, Detroit University and Manhattan College. The Eagles have scored 210 points to their opponents' 20.

Coach Wilson's team will arrive in Boston this morning and will go to Wellesley Hills where they will train for the game. Coach Wilson's team will be accompanied by a large number of rooters who will make the trip to Boston to see the game.

Coach Wilson will start the following team against the Eagles: Ends, Lassen and Bay Fisher; tackles, Ross and Ferguson; guards, Carey and Fabrick; center, Bush; backs, Wilson, Paul West and Lyle Tennant.

Coach Frank Wilson will start the following team against the Pacific Coast team: Ends, Ray Flaherty and Leo Nowak; tackles, Bob Reed and Joe Zabilski; guards, Bob Shaw and Ed Wall; center, Al Desmond; backs, Jim Murphy, Jim Regan, Bill Cronin and Jim Lawrence.

Both teams are in good condition and the game promises to be a thriller.

"Where are you going?" asked Mr. Raymond.

"We're going to Boston," said the good Baron, "George here he's going to fight that Jack Sharkey."

"What's George Rapline about?" I inquired.

"Oh, he got hurt in a fight with Tiny Jim Herman out in Portland, Oregon and he's still lame," said the Baron.

STAR LINEMAN LOST TO B.U. ELEVEN

By MAURICE KRAMER

Ralph Hoag, the most dependable man of the Boston University eleven, will not be able to start the game at Tufts Oval against Middlebury tomorrow.

Hoag has been a varsity center for three years and has always been a stonewall defense. He injured his shoulder in the Yale game and has not been able to do his work since. Dorfman will start in his place.

Nelson has been shifted to fullback. At signal calling he was a decided failure. His ability to kick the ball, however, made the coaches shift him to fullback where he has given a good account of himself. There is a possibility of his starting against Klewnow's puplis.

The B. U. line will contain many new faces. The first lineup that Ed Hodgson has been using in scrimmages this week is Brittain and Spitzer, ends, Freeman and Jerome tackles, Brown and Duncalo, guards, and Dorfmin, center. Herbets has been at quarterback, Halliday and Captain Macdonald at half backs and Nelson at fullback.

The athletic authorities believe that Herbets will be able to start at quarterback. They claim that the signal barker received only his expenses for coaching the Harvard lacross team a few years ago which resulted in charges of professionalism being brought against him and their claim is supported by Fred Moore, Harvard's graduate manager. If he starts tomorrow, the Terriers' offense will be strengthened fifty per cent.

Boston University mentors expect a great deal of trouble from Marshall Klewnow's Vermonters. Middlebury has not proven itself formidable to date this Fall but the showing of the home boys has not been satisfying either. The teams are evenly matched and the breaks will have a great deal to do with the outcome.

Middlebury has a light fast eleven. The team will depend on speed and a shifting attack to offset the Terriers' straight football. Captain Mowe of the visitors is one of the greatest lineman that Middlebury has ever produced. He will start at tackle and he should make the left side of his line impregnable.

Ex-Champ Finds Football Game Much Too Rough

New York, Oct 15 (A.P.)—Benny Leonard, retired light weight champion, tried football once when he was attached to Camp Upton as a boxing instructor during the war, and here's what they say happened.

Eddie Mahan, all American backfield star when Harvard was dropping no games to early season opponents, induced Leonard to engage in a mild scrimmage during the formation of the camp eleven. After one minute of play, Benny, trying to get his breath and other things that had been knocked out of him, halted proceedings to announce:

"No more of that crazy game for me. I'm no darn fool."

All of the present officers will retain their positions by unanimous vote. The vice-president is Oscar M. Flather of New Hampshire and the secretary-treasurer, Raymor M. Gardiner.

Plans were discussed for holding the championships of next season on July 27-30, but the name of the club has not been agreed upon as yet. An effort will also be made to form a Vermont association.

Riconda and Wilson Go to Milwaukee

Frank Wilson, former Boston College outfielder, and with the Braves for two years, has been released on option to the Milwaukee Club of the American Association.

The Tribe has the privilege under the agreement to repurchase him at the end of the 1927 season.

Harry Riconda, also was released to the Brewers. Wilson and Riconda will go Milwaukee in part payment for Lance Richbourg.

Judge Emil E. Fuchs of the Boston National Club, in a statement, deplores the release of Wilson, but declares it was necessary and essential in order to secure the services of Richbourg, who was the best player in the American Association, he asserts.

The tribal president declares that the Braves' roster of pitchers, Benton, Smith, Wertz, Greenwich, Mogridge, Cooney, Graham, Edwards, Mills, Hearn Goldsmith, Kamm, Bebey and No-hit no-run Robertson, obtained from Milwaukee, is the best in the senior major league circuit.

Champion Tiger Flowers Meets Tough Customer in Maxie Rosenbloom

By JACK CONWAY

MAXIE ROSENBLOOM of New York will make a stout-hearted attempt to stop the wallop of Tiger Flowers, world's middleweight champion, when they battle ten rounds in a bout at a Commercial A. C. show at Mechanics Building tonight.

It will be Rosenbloom's first major effort in Boston. He won here a year ago last summer in the role of sparring partner to Jim Maloney, but he did not have an opportunity to show his class in the ring.

During the past year Rosenbloom has boosted his way to fame. He has scored victories over Dave Shade, who he has defeated both times on two occasions.

Jack Conway

I saw Rosenbloom work out at Grupp's gym in New York the other day. He impressed me as being a fast, shifty boxer who will give Flowers as stiff opposition as he has ever received in a Boston ring.

Besides being a nifty boxer, Rosenbloom packs a stiff punch with his right hand. This socko will cause the Tiger plenty of trouble tonight.

FLOWERS is in good condition and confident he will upset Rosenbloom as he has every other battler he has met in a Hub ring. The Tiger's title will not be at stake as Maxie will enter the ring as a middleweight champion. The Tiger's crown is not at stake as Rosenbloom refused to accept terms offered by Promoter Lou Viau. Mother makes the best veal loaf

SHE gets a pound and a half of finely chopped lean veal and a quarter of a pound of finely chopped fat salt pork.

Then she takes ¼ cup bread or cracker crumbs, ½ tablespoon of salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon of Bell's Seasoning.

She mixes all into a small loaf, packing it with the mixture of an egg, cream and salt. It is put in a pan over which she has placed a few thin slices of fat pork and it is put in a hot oven to bake, basting frequently with the fat in the pan.

When it's done, she pours off the fat, chills the loaf, cuts it in thin slices, and garnishes with slices of hard-boiled egg and parsley.

DAILY SHORT STORY

A CROSS WORD ESTRANGEMENT

By Eric Heath

Nan had not seen him work cross word puzzles for two or three times before, she was well aware of the fact that he did not wish any assistance from her. He asked her to sit beside him, however, and with his pencil in his mouth refer to each over his cleverness in deciphering the puzzles. Wanted her, too, to act as official spotter, although he was forced to admit that he did not know everything.

For almost ten years, as a matter of fact, she had fed his inordinate vanity as best she had fed his 200 pounds of flesh. Perhaps the urge of Autumn and try was in her blood, perhaps the daily allotment of flattery was growing a bit irksome or monotonous. At any rate, she had made up her mind that she could not carry on at the pace he had set.

He would work the puzzle appearing in the morning paper before he ate breakfast. It made no difference to him that Nan had dozens of duties to perform and would be glad to get the table cleared in order to begin other tasks. He always worked the puzzle in the evening paper before he left his office. It did not worry him for Nan to have to try to keep a good dinner palatable.

He came in smilingly, tossed the evening paper on her lap and declared in the manner of Napoleon announcing a decisive victory, "I've licked it, Nan! I'm O.K."

One evening, when he came home to "stand by" and she knew she would, Nan [illegible] on and do the puzzle if you like, but I'll [illegible] bore me. I want to read."

"Bore you! Well, that's a good one! Instead of doing something to stimulate your intellect, increase your vocabulary and add to your fund of knowledge—which in late years seems to be confined to housekeeping accounts—you would rather read [illegible] stuff published in second class magazines."

"Well," she replied sweetly, "while you are in the mental improving business you might widen the scope of your thinking and try to realize that a woman has the privilege now of indulging in her likes and dislikes just as much as a man. In other words, we do not live in King Solomon's day. A wife is beginning to be treated like a real human being and in some enlightened places has the legal status of a lord of creation."

She had always followed, begged to be forgiven—for his sins of omission and commission—and he would magnanimously take her to his bosom again. On this particular evening, Nan did not rise from her chair. However, he flanged the front door twice, as if he feared [illegible] that her hearing, along with her vanity, was becoming impaired. And when she made no effort to restrain him, out he went! She heard the purr of his car on the driveway.

The following evening he did not come home to dinner. The next morning he asked, peevishly, "Where's my puzzle book? Want to take it to the office where I can work in peace."

About ten o'clock one evening, a telegram arrived at the house for him. Important! Nan called him at the office. The voice of his assistant answered, then, recognizing Nan's voice, made a vain effort to disguise her own. "No, no," she stammered, "you have the wrong number." Nan instinctively knew that Cent had made no mistake. She called again. Will called a surly "Well," and Nan told him the news of the message.

She watched the various contests and Carrie Condon's name appeared [illegible] times. Later one of Nan's friends remarked on seeing Will and his office girl having dinner [illegible] frequently at a restaurant near his office building. "Old boy must work too hard! Better watch him!" he laughingly warned her.

Nan made a mental and spiritual inventory. She had to take on some new interest and she had [illegible] to do it at once. Her faith in Will was totally destroyed. His vanity was overwhelming [illegible] when she made no effort to restrain him, out he went! She heard the purr of his car on the driveway.

Nan made a mental and spiritual inventory. She had to take on some new interest and she had [illegible] to do it at once. Her faith in Will was totally destroyed. His vanity was overwhelming [illegible] his capacity to feel anything. He had turned from her lightly as the first indication that she did not regard him as a near god. Had turned to the first available woman, little, ordinary Carrie Condon.

Nan went downtown and bought four or five new puzzle books. Quite a departure from the old order of things. Instead of going to a beauty parlor and French shops to be rejuvenated and redecorated, to recapture a wandering husband, the modern woman buys a few puzzle books. But that was not all that Nan did.

A week later, two puzzles appeared in a local paper with a brief statement that the management of that paper had arranged to present two different puzzles every day. They were made by a clever local fan and were the best the paper could procure. One puzzle is enough! Nan was the guilty party.

Ah, Nan's puzzles certainly puzzled Will. They were too much for him and for his stupid adoring girl. All the dictionaries and books of synonyms did not help them enough. In sheer desperation Will began to arrive home a little earlier in the evenings and would strictly turn the conversation to questions of art, history, the drama. It was amusing to hear Nan glibly [illegible] waiting for Nan when she came home. As she started up the stairs he rushed like a bull out of the library and laid a steel-like grip on her wrist. "What you mean, what the devil can you mean, running around to restaurants with men? You're on with it!"

"Methinks you do protest too much!" she quoted airily and went to her room. The telephone rang. Nan picked up the extension just as Will reached for the receiver downstairs. Across London's voice came over the wire. "Say, Will, honey, give me a word with six letters ending with e and which means Lung c!"

"Kmmsh" called Nan sweetly, clicking up her end of the wire."

"——" roared the puzzle fan. "Get off - a wire, Miss Condon, will you! I never want to hear you mention a crossword puzzle to me as long as you live. I never want anybody to mention one to me!"

Will came charging into Nan's room just a minute later. She was opening a long thin envelope. A check fluttered out. Will picked it up. It was for quite a bit of money, anyway, for twelve crossword puzzles. It was signed by the treasurer of the city's largest newspaper.

Would he ever hear anything about crossword puzzles again? Nan thought that he would!

MEDBURY SAYS---

THIS is the time of the year when thousands of sportsmen are getting ready for the hunting season. One fellow was so anxious to try out his new rifle that he went home and shot his wife.

SHE had him arrested for shooting at her without a permit.

ANOTHER man killed five of his neighbor's cows. He thought they were deer.

HE also set some traps in the parlor and caught three bear rugs.

AN amateur hunter went downtown and shot all the pigeons off the roof of the City Hall. Somebody told him they were ducks.

HE said he wanted to get enough canvasbacks to make himself a tent.

HE trailed a leopard for three miles the other day and then found out that it was a fur coat.

A WOMAN had him arrested for shooting all the birds off her best hat.

HE got in a taxidermist's shop last week and killed two stuffed tigers and a lion.

HE said it was the first time he ever knew wild animals lived on shelves.

HIS wife bawled him out because he used her Pekinese for a hunting dog.

HE painted yellow spots on the cat and told the dog it was a leopard.

HE was so anxious to hunt that the poor people across the street let him sit on their porch to keep the wolf away from the door.

HIS wife was also an amateur hunter. She bought a gun the other day and went out into the woods to shoot some crabs.

SHE said she hoped to get a nice mess of them for dinner.

SHE said she'd often seen them perched in the street, but she didn't know how to tell the males from the females.

SHE visited Franklin Park Zoo last week and the keeper was so frightened that he took the animals out of the cages and locked them up in a safe deposit vault.

HE was afraid she might aim at the rhinoceros and kill a canary.

HUNTING is a great sport, but some people are such bum shots that they can spend weeks in the mountains and not hit anything but the dog.

To All Who Suffer Stomach Agony, Gas and Indigestion

Boston Druggists Make This Offer

Money Back If One Bottle of Dare's Mentha Pepsin Doesn't Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used

At last the way has been found to combine Pepsin with other corrective stomach agents so that it will do the most good in the shortest possible time.

Why bother with slow actors when one tablespoonful of this splendid and pleasant liquid remedy will cause gas, bloating, heaviness, heartburn or any upset condition of the stomach to speedily vanish?

And why should any man or woman suffer another hour with indigestion or any stomach misery when the remedy that acts almost instantly can be easily procured?

But there is more to say about this remarkable remedy—something that will interest thousands of dependant people.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin not only quickly relieves stomach distress, but it also conquers stubborn indigestion, dyspepsia and gastritis, and puts an end to dizziness, nervousness, headache, sleeplessness and despondency, which distressing troubles are nearly always caused by chronic stomach disturbance.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin is pleasant to take, has a delightfully refreshing taste and after it has put your stomach in a clean and healthy condition, just notice how much better you look and feel, for besides correcting stomach disorders this supremely good remedy that druggists everywhere guarantee, is a fine tonic that builds you up and makes you work with vim, eat with relish and sleep soundly.

Three Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

ALL who have read Ouida's remarkable story, "The Nuremberg Stove," will be interested in visiting that city with me, and seeing the very stove immortalized by her. And while you are in that city, you must not miss seeing the various other interesting relics of bygone days.

In the Burg, or Castle, you will find the stove. It is of perfectly exquisite tiles, and was fashioned by some of the greatest sculptors of that day. The castle itself is a wonderful place, and the view from one of its windows is glorious indeed. The city still looks just as it did four centuries ago. Looking from the window out over the walls and red roofs one is inspired by the realization of the age and traditions of the old city.

Do not miss drinking from that famous fountain, the Little Goose Man. He is a peasant boy with a goose under either arm, and he has supplied water to the thirsty citizens for nearly four hundred years! Not far from here, as the Burggraf-enburg, or Burrgrave's Castle, where is kept that sinister relic, the famous Iron Virgin, together with many other greater or lesser instruments of torture.

In the centre of the town is probably the most beautiful fountain in the world. I can give you some idea of its age if I tell you that when Columbus started on his famous voyage, it was nearly one hundred and fifty years old! It is called the Schoner Brunnen and is described as being "a pyramid of pure Gothic that rises to the height of a six-story building, like the towers of an enchanted fountain frozen into stone. There are suggestions of fine lace and delicate foliage, of cathedral spires and granite poetry. A forged iron frieze-fence surrounds it at the bottom."

How to Reduce Hips

By Maria Jeritza

THE feminine figure cannot be attractive if the hips are out of proportion to the rest of the body. This doesn't mean that you should present the appearance of a weedy, delicate boy in order to attain symmetry. A hipless figure is not beautiful. Any sculptor will tell you that ideal requirements of feminine loveliness demand slenderly curved hips shaped like an exquisite Roman vase or amphora.

The hip bones should be well covered but there should be no fat or flabby tissue. If your hips are over developed, do not resort to drastic remedies or try pills or salts of which you know nothing, unless you do so under your physician's directions. Instead, modify your diet and adopt into your daily regime a few exercises especially designed to improve circulation through the region of the hips, burning away excess fat, replacing it with trim muscle.

Omit candy and nibbling between meals or you cannot hope to lose weight. Candy eating is largely a habit. When you have omitted sweets from your diet for a few weeks, you will forget all about them. When you indulge in candy, omit desserts and bread, etc., and potatoes, to balance the sugar and starch [illegible] item. Candy is recommended to be used to excess that many girls eat it. Danger of ruining the complexion, digestion and symmetry of figure, through the habit of constantly nibbling at sweets.

As for exercise, if there is any better means of strenuously stretching all the muscles of the legs and hips, especially those of the hips, than the following exercise, I do not know what it is. This exercise is included in nearly all sets of instruction for reducing.

Stand straight, on your toes, fold your arms. Now bend your knees down to a squatting position, still keeping on your toes, then return to first position. Repeat this exercise ten times each morning before your bath and ten times each evening before retiring. Also, take long walks and omit candy, white bread and potatoes. I believe you will be delighted with the resulting slender-ness, which should bring grace and symmetry to your hips, lower back and legs.

Advice to the Lovelorn

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have reached the age of fifty. I have been married twenty-eight years and am the mother of five children, of whom two are married.

As long as I have known my husband he has been in the habit of playing cards. Sometimes he doesn't come home for two whole nights.

There have been times when I have nearly died of hunger. But the moment he gets a dollar or two he gambles. I have tried in every way to change him. I am a good housewife and keep a nice, cozy little home. But my husband doesn't appreciate this.

Every Saturday when he comes home at four or five o'clock all I ask of him is twenty-five dollars, asking your home as wearing for our support. But I am lucky if I get one-half or one-fourth of that.

I have now reached a point where I feel that I can't go any further. Although I am fifty I may live for thirty or more years and I would like to be happy. Kindly give me your advice.

MRS. R. I.

YOUR letter goes to prove the truth, which too few women realize, that men seldom change after marriage. If you marry a gambler or a drunkard, you will have to put up with drunkenness or gambling all the years of your married life.

In spite of the difficulties you have to meet are you sure you are not happier in your home, living with your husband, than you would be without him?

Of course, if he doesn't support you, within reason, you would be justified in living apart from him. This need not mean divorce, but legal separation. However, if your husband is kind to you in every way except that he has a passion for gambling, I don't whether after so many years of married life you would be happy away from him.

My suggestion is that you try to content yourself with things as they are, to make yourself as agreeable and charming as possible. See to it that this will not be about more harmony. All success to you!

MOTHER OF J. WATT

THE mother of James Watt, inventor of the steam engine, was a gentlewoman of quiet deportment, greatly esteemed by her neighbors. Her name before her marriage was Agnes Muirhead. She was a woman endowed with graces of person as well as heart.

It is significant that biographers devote a great deal of space to Mrs. Watt. She was an excellent housewife and noted for her cheerful disposition. She is described as a person above the average, and she lived in a superior fashion. An acquaintance of her time once said of her: "A crass, braw woman; besse now to be seen like her."

Her influence upon young Watt was important. Although termed a "Grand Lady," Mrs. Watt also saw the need of spending herself to a thorough, practical side of life, and she devoted much of her time to teaching her son. He was delicate and was kept from school a great deal. It was his mother's scrupulous attention to his educational wants, however, that enabled him to develop his talents.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for "Best Joke published." Address "Best Joke, Boston Evening American.

He choked her violently and she died. There could be no doubt about it. He listened to her dying gasp; she was still and cold. Yet in his fury, he was not convinced. He stopped on her—his leg, heavy foot. A faint gasp—was she groaning? No, she was still dead.

"Darn that dogtrot!" he muttered.

President Coolidge, This Is for You

Secretaries Wilbur and Davis, This Is for You, Also

THE MAN BEHIND THIS GUN IS AN OXFORD STUDENT, ONE OF THE OXFORD BOAT CREW. HERE HE IS STUDYING "AERIAL GUNNERY."

This picture is printed for the special edification of Mr. Coolidge, President of the United States; Mr. Davis, Secretary of War, and Mr. Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy.

They will see it in the Washington Times, and are invited to think about it.

The British Government teaches young men of Oxford and other university men to fly, and to use machine guns in the air.

OUR young men are playing baseball, golf, polo. No one teaches them to fly. The Government has a few postoffice airplanes, not many. It did try to send three airships from California to Honolulu and made a one hundred per cent. failure of the attempt.

The other day a British flier finished a round trip from London to Australia and back, 28,000 miles.

Mr. President, Secretaries Wilbur and Davis, this is a rich country. Why don't we teach young men of Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth, University of California and Chicago and the others something about flying and about aerial gunnery?

Young men would be glad to learn. And the day is coming when those who, like the President, the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy, are responsible for the Nation's safety will be sorry that this is an English picture with no United States duplicate.

They should duplicate this picture in every university in the United States. Some day we shall suddenly begin looking for air men, training them and trying to build flying machines in a hurry, when it is too late.

We did that before, and the profiteers stole about a billion from the United States. That's what we got in the way of flying machinery.

"Well Out of It"

Views of a Distinguished Massachusetts Churchman on the United States and the League of Nations.

Acting on behalf of the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association, Mr. Joseph Walker, secretary of that organization, has addressed a letter to the Massachusetts candidates for the United States Senate and the House of Representatives, asking them to say exactly where they stand on the questions of the League and its World Court.

It is to be hoped that ALL the candidates will reply at once and that former Speaker Walker will let the public know what they say.

The chances are that there is no man in Bay State politics who has not formed an opinion about the League and the Court. If, however, there IS one who has yet to make up his mind, he may be helped by the views of the Rev. Dr. William E. Barton, of Foxboro, but lately returned from a tour of the world.

Dr. Barton is a distinguished authority on everything pertaining to the life of Lincoln. Former moderator of the Congregational National Council, he has spent forty years in the ministry of that denomination. He has written fifty books, including a novel or two, and he is the father of Bruce Barton, who became famous with one.

This is what Dr. Barton says about the League and the World Court:

"The United States is well out of the League of Nations.

"If I were an Englishman or a Frenchman, I would want the United States in the League. Being an American, I wish this country to stay out, for the same reason that would make me desire its entrance were I a French citizen or a British subject.

"There are ways enough in which Europe can entangle and embarrass us without giving them further opportunity by membership in the League of Nations. In my judgment, so far as preservation of peace is concerned, we are at the end of a longer lever out of the League than we would be in it.

"I am in favor of adhering to the World Court, WITH the reservations agreed upon by the United States Senate unchanged. I would not amend those reservations in any way. If the other nations do not want us in the Court on those terms, then we should stay out. I believe, however, that the other powers will accept the reservations exactly as they were adopted by the Senate."

"If the nations of Europe again take up arms, I am sure the United States will arm for defence and then permit Europe to fight it out.

"The attitude of this country may be expressed by the thought that if Europe is dissatisfied with the sacrifice of 60,000 young Americans on the soil of France and the GIFT OF BILLIONS OF DOLLARS ENTIRELY SEPARATE FROM THE WAR LOANS, then the United States will feel impelled to stand aloof from future European conflicts."

Except that Dr. Barton while in Europe failed to detect the hook-up between the League and its subservient creature, the so-called "World" Court, his views on "internationalism" are familiar to our readers as those of the Boston Evening American.

We shall be glad to compare them with the present attitude of Senator Butler, former Senator Walsh and the several candidates for the House of Representatives.

NEUTRAL HEARTS HOLD US BACK

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE reason people are nonentities, the reason sermons are wishy-washy, the reason articles are limp tailed, the reason performances on the stage are punchless—are all one and the same; namely;

Cardiac neutrality.

The heart is indifferent. It isn't a life and death proposition at all. It is just another sermon, another article, another show.

Said Trollope:

"In my first novel I had a story to tell; afterwards I had to tell a story."

In most books the author seems to be "having to tell a story." The heart isn't there. The fire of Dickens and Hugo is absent.

Why?

Because the subject isn't one that means anything to the writer. It is nothing he would fight for. It is only the framework on which to hang the brilliance of his style or the scintillation of his wit.

Those who are marking time and filling space are "having to write a story." They are doing nothing they can throw their whole hearts into doing, nothing they can get dead in earnest about.

So they are indifferent, lukewarm, half-hearted, lackadaisical.

"One strong heart will make a thousand quail." The reason is that the thousand don't care. Their hearts are neutral. They lack the iron of conviction.

One stumbling speaker who is sincere and deadly in earnest can move a group that remains cold to all the polished arts of rhetoric from a speaker whose heart is hollow.

If one subway car full of common, everyday men and women got so in earnest about any subject that they would all give their lives for the cause if necessary, that handful of people could move the whole city of Boston.

But only at rare intervals in history have that number of people got that much in earnest about anything at one time.

As a usual thing it is only the rare individual who is not numbered among those whose hearts are neutral.

WHY YOU NEED A CHANGE OCCASIONALLY

Are you appalled at the monotony of your life?

Day after day, week in and week out, year upon year, the same routine.

More and more you have drawn within yourself and shunned those who were not completely congenial until it is now too much effort for you to get out of the rut in which you find yourself.

And you wonder if your life is worth the struggle.

You need to have some change and probably your family is just as much in need of variety in daily life.

Do something different once in a while and give the members of your family a little surprise occasionally.

Be more enthusiastic or at least agreeable if some of the family try to vary the monotony and change the old order.

It is comparatively easy to drop out and not so easy to get back.

Don't be so sufficient unto yourself.

You need the society of others to be interested and interesting.

A change is needed to make you think along different lines and make you more modern and original.

A BELATED THRILL

"TO think I have been in America thirty-four years and had to wait until I became a prisoner in CHARLES STREET JAIL to see my first baseball game," said SAMUEL J. GORDON, president of the Eagle Investment Association whose snarled affairs have jeopardized the life's savings of scores in the WEST END.

"SAM" got a kick out of watching two nines, made up of inmates, cross bats, on Columbus Day. He says the investment scheme which deprived him of his freedom found its origin in RUSSIA and GERMANY. GORDON is a native of Russia. He has found the jare so good at SHERIFF KELIHER'S "Hotel" that he stopped his wife sending in chicken and other special viands.

"TWIXT LOVE AND DUTY."

"Every time I rub elbows with the news end," said SAMMY BERENSON, advertising ace, "I'm all mussed up which I'd rather (rail. Reporting is great. Every time you turn you see a story. There was the 50-year-old woman who lost every nickel of her bank account in the Eagle Investment Association. The other investors raised a purse for her at the protest meeting, and, while the meeting was going on, there was an Italian wedding in the hall upstairs. Just a flight of stairs between joy and sorrow. Do you get me?"

DARK DARWINIANISM

"For the luva ——," gasped Motorcycle Officer LARRY O'DONNELL of NEWTON police. "It ain't a parrot 'cause it had a tail. It's smaller than a cat. It's not a feather duster, not a gold fish, and no dog ever hopped like that. The place must be haunted."

LARRY had been sitting for more than an hour watching from the window of a darkened room when something hairy hopped on his shoulder, brushed his neck and cheek and vanished, in the twinkling of an eye.

Now LARRY O'DONNELL is no coward, but he made a guard room confession that it took every atom of nerve and left him quivering. Reaching for a button that flooded the room with light he beheld a pet monkey grinning at him from the back of a chair. The head of the family whose house LARRY had been assigned to guard from a night marauder had forgotten to mention the presence of the nimble and inquisitive JOCKO.

STUDENT OF ANCESTRY

The REV. REV. WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D. D., Episcopal Bishop, is a profound student of ancestry. He told Episcopal ministers at a recent meeting in the crypt of ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL that the new Dean of the Cathedral, the REV. PHILIMON F. STURGIS, D. D., has for a wife the granddaughter of BISHOP ALONZO POTTER, once Bishop of Pennsylvania, and second rector of ST. PAUL'S in BOSTON.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

EDNA sits at home and cries. Her marriage is a failure.

Three years ago she met Cyril Hart and all life broke into sunrise. She had been one of those serious, dreaming girls who see love in heroic measures—or not at all. When the other girls were going to parties, she was tied to the home, caring for her sick mother. The days went by in drab, sluggish tide. Nothing was real except that secret radiant dream of love which should come some day and make life sweet and significant. Then when she was twenty-five the year her mother died, Cyril came. And she was swept into marriage on a great, golden wave of ecstasy.

She told her friends that her life was consummated now that love had come. She thought it was. She was very sure that she could never again have need of anything save Cyril and Cyril's children. She would sink her life in Cyril and he would sink his in hers. They would always understand each other and always make each other happy.

Simple old beliefs, but they went to the roots of Edna's soul and left room for nothing else.

Sunrise Colors Fade

And then gradually, so gradually that she could not have told when things changed. The sunrise colors faded. The song stopped. A little hunger started and grew and grew.

One day, to her horror, she discovered that she was lonely—hideously lonely. Cyril seemed like a stranger—a genial, friendly stranger, but nevertheless utterly apart from her life.

Had he been unfaithful to her? Had he been cruel? Did he have some secret vice? No, she could bring no such charges against him. Perhaps if he had been a bad, wicked, desperate criminal it would have been easier. There was something thrilling and lovable about criminals. But Cyril was just a man. A common man—who fussed if his shaving water was cold. And read the newspaper at breakfast. And liked poker. And forgot anniversaries. And asked her "what was biting" her when her heart was madly clamoring for sympathy and understanding.

Cyril—her dream man—her poet—her hero—her saint—was nothing but a common man who snored and ogled pretty ankles and wanted to talk for hours and hours about business.

And in her bitter disillusion Edna has decided that her life is wrecked and wishes she could die.

What Romance Does.

This isn't a fanciful picture of a lovelorn maid. It is a very accurate account of what Romance does to many women in this self-conscious day. Never have women thought so much about themselves or demanded as much of love as they do now. Love must not only live up to all the old romantic specifications, it must also meet all the new demands which modern young women, with complicated natures, make upon it. It must satisfy the mind, and stimulate the character as well as soothe the heart. It must be strong enough to compete with the rival allurements of a career, and subtle enough to satisfy strange spiritual hungers as fast as a neurotic age creates them.

And love can't do it. It can't do it in Edna's case or in any other woman's case. For how absurd we stupid mortals who can't understand ourselves, be able to understand another soul with complete and exquisite wisdom and sympathy? How absurd a wife can't solve our own problems, set another life aright in all its aching and turmoil? And why should we expect love to handle such an impossible job? We shouldn't, but we do.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

The chains of habit are generally too small to be felt until they are too strong to be broken.—Johnson.

Win hearts, and you have all men's hands and purses.—Burleigh.

Nobody should be rich but those who understand it.—Goethe.

It is motive alone that gives character to the actions of men.—Bruyere.

The chief benefit of dancing is to learn one how to sit still.—Johnson.

You are tried alone; alone you pass into the desert; alone you are sifted by the world.

F. W. Robertson.

The over curious are not over wise.—Massinger.

To see what is right, and not to do it, is want of courage.—Confucius.

The cynic is one who never sees a good quality in a man and never fails to see a bad one.

—H. W. Beecher.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

I LOVE to know what men have done long centuries ago, how they have met the changing days, clasped joy and conquered woe. And so I seek the story here on history's vital page, which shows how kings and knaves have lived from changesongsful age to age. I find it all the songs they sang, the mighty deeds they did, the thoughts they thought, the dreams they dreamed; no love, no hatred hid. The yellow page of history lays all these secrets bare; shows ancient men were kin to use in rapture and despair. Those savage tribes who, aeons back, by sailless oceans dwelt, they, too, knew hope's most fair mirage, fear's keenest arrows felt. So from all these who long ago went down the ways I tread; I learn to meet both joy and woe, to face both hope and dread.

Lightning's Perils

By Garrett P. Serviss,

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

MANY inquiries come concerning lightning. The startling nature of the phenomenon and the accompanying peril to life and property give it a unique place in popular interest.

The interest in the stars and other celestial objects is more continuous and inspiring, but lightning, with its voice of thunder, holds the palm for power to instill terror. Statistics show that on the average about 1,500 people are struck by lightning every year in the United States.

But being struck means being killed in only about one case in three. The distinction conferred by this dangerous accolade from the sky might conceivably tempt some persons to desire that sort of knighthood, if it could be obtained by seeking. It sometimes marks its surviving victims with a characteristic tattoo that remains for life.

Many inquiries relate to the value of the lightning-rod as a protection for buildings. I think that only a provisional answer can be given. A great deal depends upon the manner of applying the rods and their accessories.

Theory still holds the whip hand. In this matter what some regard as efficient, others think is inefficient. Statistics, which, like the law of probabilities, depend for their reliability largely upon the extent of the field that they cover, appear to show that the protection afforded to properly rodded buildings is very decided.

A publication of the U. S. Bureau of Standards at Washington on "Protection of Life and Property Against Lightning" may be consulted on this point.

An important consideration is that buildings with metallic frames and roofs that are properly connected with the ground have as much protection as they would derive from lightning rods. It must be remembered that what a pointed rod does, when connected with the ground, especially stone ground, is to afford an easy path for an electrical discharge from the clouds.

It doesn't drive the lightning away and it doesn't, properly speaking, attract it, but—it opens a gate to let the charging ill pass harmlessly through.

But, perhaps that is rather too picturesque a way of stating the facts. In strict reality, the conductor is, theoretically at least, more like a safety valve.

It opens a way of escape for the increasing electric pressure as soon as the strain approaches a dangerous limit. There is no explosive action. The bolt does not charge, because he never gets to be a full formed bolt.
